PRESIDENT SHOT!

While Receiving Visitors in the Temple of Music at The Pan-American Exposition.

WAS APPROACHED BY THE ASSASSIN

With His Revolver in His Hand But Concealed Under a Handkerchief and Fired Two Shots—Both Bullets Entered the President's Body.

STRONG HOPES OF RECOVERY BY PHYSICIANS

BUFFALO, Sept. 7.—Just a brief twenty-four hours ago the newspapers of the city blazoned forth in all the pomp of headline type:

"The proudest day in Buffalo's history."

Last night, in sackcloth and ashes, in sombre type, surrounded by the grue some borders of black, the same newspapers are telling in funeral tone to a horrified populace the deplorable details of "the blackest day in the history of Buffalo."

President McKinley, the idol of the American people, the nation's chief executive and the city's honored guest, lies prostrate, suffering the pangs inflicted by the bullets of a cowardly assassin, while his life hangs in the balance.

Out on Delaware avenue, at the home of John G. Milburn, president of the Pan-American Exposition, with tearful face and heart torn by conflicting hopes and fears, sits the faithful wife, whose devotion is known to all the nation.

It was a few moments after 4 o'clock, while President McKinley was holding a reception in the Temple of Music, that the attack was made.

Standing in the midst of a crowd numbering thousands, surrounded by every evidence of good will, pressed by a motley throng of people, showered with expressions of love and loyalty, beseiged by a multitude all eager to clasp his hand—amid these surroundings and with the applaudits of an admiring army of sightseers ringing in his ears, the blow of the assassin fell, and in an instant pleasure gave way to pain, admiration to agony, folly turned to fury and pandemonium reigned.

Last night a surging, swaying multitude was on the city's main thoroughfares, choking the streets in front of the principal newspapers, scanning the bulletins with anxious eyes and groaning or cheering in turn at each succeeding announcement as the nature of the message sunk or buoyed their hopes.

Down at police headquarters, surrounded by stern-faced inquisitors of the law, sits a medium-sized man of commonplace appearance, with his fixed gaze directed on the floor, who presses his lips firmly together and listens with an air of assumed indifference to the persistent stream of questions, arguments, objurgations and admonitions with which his captors seek to induce or compel him to talk.

It was just after the daily organ recital in the splendid Temple of Music that the dastardly attempt was made.

Planned with all the diabolical ingenuity and finesse of which anarchy or nihilism is capable, the would-be assassin carried out the work without a hitch, and, should his designs fail and the president survive, only to divine providence can be attributed that beneficent result. The president, though well guarded by United States special service detectives, was fully exposed to such on attack as occurred. He stood at the edge of the raised dais upon which stands the great pipe organ at the east side of the magnificent structure.

Throngs of people crowded in it at the various entrances to gaze upon their executive, perchance to clasp his hand, and then to fight their way out in the good natured mob that every minute swelled and multiplied at the points of ingress and egress of the building. Upon his right stood John G. Milburn, of Buffalo, president of the Pan-American expostion. chatting with the president and introducing him, especially to persons of note who approached. Upon the president's left stood Mr. Cortelyou.

It was shortly after 4 p. m. when one of the throng which surrounded the president, a medium sized man of ordinary appearance and plainly dressed in black, approached as if to greet the president. Both Secretary Cortelyou and President Milburn noticed that the man's hand was swathed in a bandage or handkerchief. Reports of the bystanders differ as to which hand. He worked his way amid the stream of people up to the edge of the dais until he was within two feet of the president.

President McKinley smiled, bowed and extended his hand in that spirit of geniality, to the American people so well known, when suddenly the sharp crack of a revolver rang out loud and clear above the hum of voices, the shuffling of myriad feet and vibrating waves of applause that ever and anon swept here and there over the assemblage.

There was an instant of almost complete silence. The president stood stock still, a look of hesitancy, almost of bewilderment, on his face. Then he retreated a step, while a pallor began to steal over his features. The multitude, only partially aware that something serious had happened, paused in surprise, while necks were craned and all eyes were turned as one toward the rostrum where a tragedy was being enacted.

Then came a commotion. With the leap of a tiger three men threw themselves forward, as with one impulse, and sprang toward the would-be assassin. Two of them were United States secret service men, who were here on the lookout and whose duty it was to guard against just such a calamity as had here befallen the president and the nation. The third was a bystander, a negro, who had only an instant previously grasped in his dusky palm the hand of the president. As one man the trio hurled themselves upon the president's assailant. In a twinkle he was borne to the ground, his weapon was wrested from his grasp and strong arms pinioned him down.

Then the multitude which thronged the edifice began to come to a realizing sense of the awfulness of the scene in which they had been unwilling witnesses. A murmur arose, spread and swelled to a hum of confusion, then grew to a babel of sounds and later to a pandemonium of noises.

The crowds that a moment before had stood mute and motionless, as in bewildered ignorance of the enormity of the thing, now, with a single impulse, surged forward toward the stage of the horrid drama, while a hoarse cry welled up from a thousand throats, and a thousand men charged forward to lay hands upon the perpetrator of the dastardly crime.

For a moment the confusion was terrible. The crowd surged forward regardless of consequences. Men shouted and fought, women screamed and children cried. Some of those nearest the doors fled from the edifice in fear of a stampede, while hundreds of others from the outside struggled blindly forward in the effort to penetrate the crowded building and solve the mystery of the excitement and panic which every moment grew and swelled within the congested inner part of the edifice.

Inside of the slightly raised dais was enacted with in those few feverish moments a tragedy so dramatic in character, so thrilling in its intensity, that few who looked on will ever be able to give a succinct account of what really did transpire. Even the actors who were playing the principal roles came out of it with blanched faces, trembling limbs and beating hearts, while their brains throbbed with a tumult of conflicting emotions, which could not be classified into a lucid narrative of the events as they really transpired.

But of the multitude which witnessed or bore a part in the scene of turmoil and turbulence, there was but one mind which seemed to retain its equilibrium, one hand which remained steady, one eye which gazed with unflinching calmness and one voice which retained its even tenor and faltered not at the most critical juncture.

They were the mind and the hand and the eye and the voice of President McKinley.

After the first shock of the assassin's shots he retreated a step, then, as the detectives leaped upon his assailant, he turned, walked steadily to a chair and seated himself, at the same time removing his hat and bowing his head in his hands.

In an instant Secretary Cortelyou and President Milburn were at his side. His waistcoat was hurriedly opened, the president meanwhile admonishing those about him to remain calm and telling them not to be alarmed.

"But you are wounded," cried his secretary. "Let me examine you."

"No, I think not," answered the president. "I am not badly hurt, I assure you."

Nevertheless, his outer garments were hastily loosened and, when a trickling stream of crimson was seen to wind its way down his breast, spreading its stain over the white surface of the linen, the worst fears were confirmed.

A force of exposition guards was on the scene by this time and an effort was made to clear the building. By this time the crush was terrific. Spectators crowded down the stairways from the galleries, the crowd on the floor surged forward toward the rostrum, while, despite the strenuous efforts of police and guards, the throng without struggled madly to obtain admission.

BUFFALO, Sept. 7, 3:30 p. m.—Condition of the president unchanged from last night: pulse 136, temperature 102, respiration 28, suffers no pain except when breathing deeply, feels as well as could be expected and the doctors feel encouraged. Unless peritonitis sets in within the next six hours high hopes of his untimate recovery are entertained.

Senator Lodge called on Mrs. McKinley and she received him calmly and is bearing up bravely.

BUFFALO, September 8.—Through this quiet, peaceful Sabbath every word that came from the big, vine-clad house in Delaware avenue, in which the stricken chief magistrate of the nation lies battling for life, was reassuring, and to night the chances for his recovery are so greatly improved that all those who have kept patient vigil at his bedside feel strongly that his life will be spared. The developments of Saturday night and Sunday were dreaded, but hour after hour passed and the distinguished patient, struggling there beneath the watchful eyes of physicians and trained nurses, showed not an unfavorable symptom. Five times during the day the eminent doctors and surgeons assembled for consultation, and each time the verdict was unanimous that what change had occurred was for the better. Not the slightest symptom of peritonitis appeared, and the fresh hope born with the morning grew stronger as the day advanced until toward evening the confidence expressed in the president's recovery seemed almost too sanguine.

Dr. Charles McBurney, the famous New York surgeon who had been summoned in consultation, after a thorough examination in which he said he had found not a single unfavorable symptom, joined in the last afternoon bulletin, which declared that the president's condition was satisfactory to all the physicians present. It is not strange, therefore, that the vice president, the members of the cabinet and other distinguished visitors who called came away with lighter heart and buoyant tread and gave expression to the most optimistic sentiments.

The encouraging news spread over the exposition city with great rapidity and thousands came in carriages, in street cars and afoot, to learn for themselves of the faith and confidence that existed about the Milburn house. The brightness of the day, with its cool, bracing atmosphere, only added to the general cheerfulness, and when a score of newsboys started into the crowd about 6 o'clock, shouting "Extra, the president will live!" it was with difficulty they could suppress the shouts of thanksgiving that rose in their throats. And the newspaper men, many of whom have been at their posts for forty-eight hours continuously, remained steadfastly throughout the day in the tents across the street from the house where the country's patient lay and flashed the news over land and sea.

And yet despite all this opinion, the president is by no means out of danger. Not one of his physicians, not one of his advisors who was admitted to the inner councils, has the temerity to go so far as to declare that he is. But if he continues to improve for one more day the danger of peritonitis, which is most dreaded, will have practically disappeared.

Saturday one of the doctors thought forty-eight hours would be the limit of the danger from that source, but his more conservative colleagues believe that at least twenty-four hours, possibly thirty-six, from this time must elapse before the possibility of peritonitis shall vanished. That disposed of, still other complications may arise. Blood poisoning might set in or an abscess form where the bullet is imbedded in the muscles of the back. Thus far the ball of the assassin, which is still in the body, gives the physicians no anxiety. But if the slightest inflammation appears in the region of the lead, it will be immediately extracted. No difficulty is anticipated in this regard.

BUFFALO, September 8.—Tonight is included within the time critical to the president. He is holding his own, as Secretary Cortelyou expressed it, and if he successfully pass the night without loss of strength or the intervention of threatening conditions, his ultimate chances of recovery will be increased. He was seen tonight by all of the physicians and surgeons who are treating him, and their opinion, as expressed by the night bulletin, was favorable. They confirm his general condition to be unchanged, and their examination did not disclose anything of an unfavorable nature. They believe that the president is in a serious condition and the crisis will not be passed for another forty-eight hours. The professional men and officials hope for the best, but until the case has run through the doubtful days they will not be reassured.

BUFFALO, Sept. 9, 11:00 a. m.—President passed a somewhat restless night, sleeping fairly well. General condition unchanged. Pulse 120. Temperature 101. Respiration 28. Signed Rixley, Mann and Cortelyou.

BUFFALO, Sep. 9, 2:41 p. m.—Presidents condition becoming more and more satisfactory untoward incidents unlikely to occur. Pulse one hundred and twenty-two. Temperature one hundred and eight-tenths. Respiration twenty-eight.

MILBURN HOUSE, BUFFALO, Sept 10.—"God's contribution to the American people would be the sparing of the president's life." As the shadows were falling last night, John G. Milburn, president of the Pan-American, reverently uttered these words as he stood before the house in which the nation's patient was fighting so bravely with death. And all who have been at the Milburn residence during the day reflect the view that the battle will be won and the prayers of the world will be answered.

Since Sunday night not an unfavorable symptom has appeared. Every hour has been a victory. Faith in the outcome grows stronger and stronger and hope mounts higher and higher, until in the minds of some the danger of all future complications is brushed aside and hope has become conviction. Indeed, many of the president's friends seem possessed with a sort of superstitious confidence in the president's recovery, which nothing but an absolute change for the worse can shake. And the basis for the confidence that is expressed is solid. There has been nothing but improvement gradual and slow, but steady improvement. Every bulletin, every private and public word of the physicians in attendance breathes encouragement. The reports the physicians have given out are facts as they exist from a scientific standpoint, unmixed with sentiment.

Still, that the president is by no means out of danger is the verdict of each of them. Not one of them will risk his professional reputation with a statement that the president will live. All they will say is that with every hour the danger of complications from peritonitis or blood poisoning decreases. Dr. McBurney, the most eminent of the physicians, expresses the opinion that if the improvement continues it will be a week yet before the president can be pronounced out of danger and convalescent. And some of his colleagues, like Dr. Mann, place the immediate danger still further away. The fear of peritonitis, it can be said positively, has well nigh disappeared. With the expiration of the 72 hour period at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, danger from that source was almost gone. The president himself has been cheerful and has expressed confidence in his recovery. Yesterday he asked for a morning paper, but this, of course, had to be denied him. It is with some difficulty that he can be restrained from talking, and Col. Myron T. Herrick, of Cleveland, is quoted as authority for the statement that he has spoken at intervals of several things he proposes to do in the future.

Yesterday morning he asked to be allowed to move his position, and, when permission was granted, before the attendants could move him he changed to the position he desired to assume without difficulty or pain. This speaks much for his general strength and spirits.

Mrs. McKinley saw him again yesterday for a brief visit and Secretary Cortelyou was admitted for the first time. No one else was allowed to see him, although he inquired several times who were below stairs. He was given nourishment yesterday in the form of eggs beaten in milk, administered through the rectum.

The water which has been given heretofore cold did not appear to agree with him, and since Sunday night very hot water has been taken into the stomach through the mouth with splendid results. His bowels moved freely during the day, and this also was considered an excellent symptom.

If he continues to improve, it will be gradually. If he should grow worse the change in that direction also probably will be slow. This is the opinion of Dr. Mann. There will be no crisis. If he arrives at convalescence, Dr. Parke expresses the opinion that it will be three weeks before it will be safe to move him It is said that the exterior wound has healed well.

The sutures of the lacerated tissues were made so soon after the bullet passed that they are probably healing rapidly. With the exterior wound it is a slower process.

BUFFALO, Sept. 10, 2:35 p. m.—President McKinley's condition continues improved. Pulse 103, temperature 99, respiration 25. Dr. McBurney leaves today if there are no complications. Physicians confident of President's recovery though danger not yet passed.

BUFFALO, September 11.—The corps of eminent surgeons and physicians in attendance upon the wounded president have committed themselves without reservation to the opinion that their patient was out of danger and that only the possibility of complications threatened his life. They did not give assurance of his recovery collectively over their signature in an official bulletin, but they went a long way toward it individually and separately. During the day, each of them, with the exception of Dr. Rixey, who did not leave the Milburn residence, placed himself squarely on record, not privately to the friends of the president, but publicly through the agency of the press, that the danger point had passed and that the president would survive the attempt upon his life.

"Of course we will all feel easier when a week has passed," said Dr. McBurney, the dean of the corps. "We would like to see every door locked and double-locked, but the danger from possible complications is now very remote."

As an evidence of the supreme faith he holds Dr. McBurney, after the consultation, made a trip to Niagara Falls and last evening returned to New York. He could reach here again in ten hours if the unexpected should happen and there should be a change for the worse. The little piece of lead in the muscles of the back is giving the physicians no concern whatever. Unless it should prove troublesome to the president later on he will probably carry this grim souvenir of the anarchist with him to the end of his days.

The doctors say that once encysted it can do no harm. The X-ray machine is ready for instant use, however, and if there is the slightest inflammation or pain in the vicinity of the bullet an operation will be performed.

The vice president, members of the cabinet, Senator Hanna and the other distinguished friends of the president who have remained here to await the issue, accepted the verdict of the physicians yesterday as practically conclusive, and there was an exodus of those who considered their presence no longer necessary. Vice President Roosevelt left last evening for his home at Oyster Bay. Senator Hanna returned to Clevelond on business to be gone two days, and Controller Dawes went back to Washington last night. Abner McKinley, the president's brother, will remain a few days longer, but his family have returned home, and Mrs. Duncan and several other relatives of the president have gone. Judge Day, long and closely associated with the president, returned to Canton yesterday afternoon. The five members of the cabinet still here will remain a few days, rather as friends who have been intimately associated with the president for several years than as public officials.

The physicians have been impressed with his remarkable recuperative powers and the rapidity of his improvement. Ordinarily an incision for such an operation as was performed upon the chief executive should heal within three weeks, but in the president's case he may be strong enough to be moved a little sooner. The president will be taken to Washington as soon as it is safe to move him.

BUFFALO, Sept. 11, 11:15 A. M.

Dr. McBurney says President will recover. Dr. Minter says nothing but good news this morning; nothing but unforseen circumstances can prevent President McKinley recovering.

—Governor Stone Monday appointed Josiah Cohen, of Pittsburg, an additional orphan's court judge of Allegheny county, under an act passed by the last legislature creating this office.

HURT IN SAW MILL.

Flying Wheel Shatters the Jaw of Arthur Young.

A serious accident occurred Monday afternoon in the saw mill of William Showers, near Huston station in Nittany Valley, by which Arthur Young was badly hurt.

Mr. Young, who has been staying for some time at the home of his father-in-law, John Munich, near Huston station, is just recovering from an attack of typhoid fever and Monday afternoon while taking a short walk stopped at the saw mill. As he walked across the floor a portion of a swift revolving wooden pulley flew off and struck Mr. Young under the jaw. His injuries are serious and in the evening the injured man was taken to the Lock Haven hospital.

Mr. Young formerly lived at Cross Forks, but having been burned out there had been staying at the home of his father-in-law at Huston.

At the hospital the surgeons found on examination that the man's jaw is broken in two places.

Czolgosz Signed Confession.

BUFFALO, Sept. 9.—Leon Czolgosz, the accused and self-confessed assassin, has signed a confession, covering six pages of foolscap, which states that he is an anarchist and that he became an enthusiastic member of that body through the influence of Emma Goldman, whose writings he had listened to. He denies having any confederate and says he decided on the act three days ago and bought the revolver with which the act was committed in Buffalo. He has seven brothers and sisters in Cleveland and the Cleveland directory has the names of them living on Hoemer street and Ackland avenue, which adjoin. Some of them are butchers and others in different trades. He is now detained at police headquarters pending the result of the president's injuries.

Czolgosz does not appear in the least penitent for his action. He says he was induced by his attention to Emma Goldman's lecture and writings to decide that the present form of government in this country was all wrong, and he thought the best way to end it was by killing the president.

Strange Freak of Lightning.

During a thunder storm that passed over Centre Hall a few days ago lightning struck the chimney on the Frank Shutt home in that place. The bolt demolished the chimney and ran down into a room in which Mrs. Shutt was lying sick in bed. It knocked the collar out of the chimney hole with such force that it flew clear across the room and struck the sick lady on the head.

Aside from the shock she suffered no injury from her exciting experience.

Accused of Packing a Jury.

William F. Daley, ex-postmaster of DuBois, whose name was frequently mentioned as being connected with the fraudulent jury panel drawn for the December, 1899, term of quarter sessions court, for which crime Millard F. Johnson was indicated and pleaded guilty, was arrested Tuesday night charged with conspiring to commit that crime and aiding Johnson to escape. The charges are made by Johnson's brother.

The Fate of a Church.

The destruction of the big German Lutheran church at Accident, Md., Tuesday by lightening is called by many a judgement of the Lord. The members were full of discord, and, the services had closed, the contention was renewed with considerable bitterness by members who remained. During great uproar, lightning struck the building, which rapidly burned to the foundation. There was but one flash from a cloudless sky.

REV. WILFORD P. SHRINER, D. D.

The Methodist Pastor Highly Honored by the American University of Tennessee.

The many friends of the popular pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, Rev. Wilford P. Shriner, will rejoice at the marked honor conferred upon him by the American University of Tennessee. That institution, at a meeting of the board of regents held last week, unanimously conferred upon Rev. Shriner the degree of Doctor of Divinity.

This is a remarkable honor to be tendered to so young a man as Dr. Shriner, and certainly is a deserved compliment to his sterling worth and ability. The members of his congregation and the people of Bellefonte in general feel honored and elated at the action taken by the American University of Tennessee.

The Well Fed American.

The family of the average American lives on a scale and a daily diet which would be regarded in Europe as lavish, such a one as can be afforded there only by the rich. His table is spread with abundance, not only with articles of domestic production, but of imported food stuffs.

For example, his family consumes annually 1,250 pounds of wheat flour, 600 pounds of oats and corn meal, 750 pounds of meat, or about two pounds per day; 750 pounds of potatoes, 100 pounds of butter and 300 pounds of sugar. He is the greatest coffee drinker on earth, says a writer in "Everybody's Magazine," one pound a week being required for his family's consumption. Of tea, however, he uses little, five pounds per year sufficing for his needs.

His table costs him $16 per month. He eats three meals per day, taking his dinner at noon. He retires between nine and ten at night and rises at six in the morning.

Gigantic Coal Combine.

The Pittsburg "Post" publishes the following:

All the bituminous coal mining companies of Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, West Virginia and Kentucky are to be consolidated into one great corporation by the J. P. Morgan syndicate. The Pittsburg Coal company, with its capital of $64,000,000, and the Monongahela River Consolidated Coal and Coke company, with its capital of $30,000,000, are to be included in the greater consolidation.

Other interests that will be represented from the Pennsylvania fields will be from the Berwind-White company, the newer Fairmount Coal company, and a large number of smaller corporations of this kind. Still other interests to be represented will be from Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky and West Virginia.

The completion of the project will mean the consolidation of from $200,000,000 to $300,000,000 of invested capital.

In Doubt.

From the Washington Star.

"I judge from your conversation," said the carping person, "that you assume to be an optimist."

"Oh, yes, it is just as well to look on the bright side."

"You undertake to demonstrate that 'whatever is, is right,' and all that sort of thing?"

"That would be the tendency of my arguments."

"And you believe that everything is all for the best?"

"Yes."

"Well, I'm glad to meet you. I want to talk with some one who has studied the subject and who can possibly tell me why it is that the man who rocks the boat always manages to swim ashore and let the other people drown. It may be all for the best, but I'd like to have it explained."

A Word to Women.

Any sick woman is invited to consult by letter with Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician of the Invalids, Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y. In an active practice of more than thirty years, assisted by a staff of nearly a score of associate physicians, Dr. Pierce has treated and cured over half a million women. All diseases peculiar to women are treated with success. This consultation by letter is absolutely free. Every letter is treated as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Answers are mailed promptly giving the best of medical advice. All answers are sent in plain envelopes bearing on them no printing of any kind. Write without fear and without fee to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Umbrella an Aid to Cupid.

Word comes from Buffalo of the marriage there Tuesday of Miss Della Moughmer, of Hollidaysburg, Blair county, and G. P. Norris, of Bellefonte, Pa. Fourteen years ago the couple were betrothed, but they quarreled and they had not seen each other until a few days ago, when Mr. Norris, offering his umbrella to a lady on the Exposition grounds, was surprised to see the face of his former fiancee. Under the umbrella they renewed their old relations and lost no time in having the nuptial knot tied.

Consumption Threatened.

C. Unger, 212 Maple St., Champaign, Ill., writes: "I was troubled with a hacking cough for a year and I thought I had consumption. I tried a great many remedies and was under the care of physicians for several months. I used one bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar. It cured me, and I have not been troubled since." All druggists.

ECONOMIZE TIME AT BUFFALO

How to Get Five Days of Sight Seeing at Pan-American Into Three.

Those who attend Expositions often complain of the loss of time entailed in going to and fro between their hotel and the grounds, and would often spend more time and money in the Exposition, if opportunity offered. Travelers who intend visiting the Pan-American this year at Buffalo, however, need have no trouble on this score. The Exposition is fortunate on having right beside it a building which is in itself an object of intense interest, and one of the sights of Buffalo—we refer to Statler's. Hotel on Elmwood avenue, overlooking the grounds. This wonderful building, although only three stories high, contains over 2100 rooms and can accommodate over 5000 guests. Its dining room will seat 1200 people to a meal without crowding and so perfect is the organization, management and equipment that parties of excursionists, often numbering into hundreds, are taken in and furnished with accommodations without creating so much as a ripple of excitement. From its towers and terraces a magnificent view is to be obtained of the whole panorama of the Pan-American, while the scene at night of the illuminations of the grounds as viewed from Statler's will never be forgotten.

The erroneous impression so frequently fostered by runners, etc., on trains and elsewhere about the difficulty of obtaining accommodations and paying fearful prices for them can all be thrown to the four winds of Heaven, for Statler's can give you a clean, comfortable room with breakfast and evening dinner for $2.00 and $2.50 a day, and guarantees to take good care of all who come. For those who do not care to board at the hotel good rooms may be obtained at $1.00 to $1.50 per day, and first class meals at 35 and 50 cents each may be enjoyed at Statler's down-town restaurant in Ellicott Square. Statler's, therefore, is a valuable adjunct to the Exposition and intending visitors by availing themselves of its convenience can save themselves both time and money, and greatly enhance the pleasure of their trip.

Pill Sense.

It stands to reason that Dr. Agnew's Little Liver Pills will crowd out of the market many of the nauseous old-timers. A better medicine at less than half the price is all the argument needed to keep the demand what it has been—phenomenal—40 doses 10 cents. They cure sick headache, biliousness, and allay all stomach irritations. 100 pills in 25c. size.—3

Fell From A Scaffold.

About 8 o'clock Thursday morning Newell McCalmont and Hamill Holmes fell from a scaffold in the rear of the Pearce home at State College and Mr. McCalmant was considerable hurt.

The men were building an addition to the house. They were on a scaffold about twenty feet high. It broke and men and timber came falling down together. Mr. McCalmont was immediately picked up and taken into the house where he was soon cared for by a physcian. No bones were broken as could be aseertained at first, but the spine was severely sprained.

Mr. Holmes was not hurt, being able in a few minutes after his fall to limp home alone.—State College Times.

A Williamsport Druggist Badly Burned.

At Williamsport Thursday afternoon J. Clyde Duble was working with chemicals in the laboratory of the drug store, when the liquid he was handling ignited set the young man's clothing on fire. The flames shot from many portions of his clothing, giving him the appearance of being a pillar of fire. Joel Garrison, a clerk in the store, succeeded in smothering the flames, but not before Mr. Duble was badly burned. His right hand and arm were almost burned to a crisp as was also his left hand. He was taken to his home. The damage to the laboratory by the flames was slight.

—Arthur Pennepacker, son of George Pennepacker, of Altoona, in falling from a door upon which he was swinging, was caught by a hook which penetrated his abdomen. The flesh was torn in a V shape, exposing the intestines. The wound was carefully closed and it is thought the lad will recover.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR CONVENTION.

Held in State College Wednesday and Thursday.

The ninth annual convention of the Centre County Christian Endeavor Union was held last week in the Presbyterian church at State College. A large number of delegates were present. The convention proper opened Wednesday afternoon with a few hearty words of welcome by the county president, J. A. Pratt, and an address by Rev. W. H. Brown, of Bellefonte, on the subject, "Some blessings the convention should bring, and the responsibility of each Endeavorer for its success." A few of the good things Mr. Brown said were:

"We are engaged in one of the greatest works known to man. The blessings which will follow will last through life and through eternity. The convention should inspire us to more holy living; to do more for the cause of Christ; to receive power to do the work given us to do. The responsibilities are with the individual Endeavorers. Going home to your societies without carrying some inspiration will be good evidence that something is wrong with your interest in the cause."

Rev. Aikens, of Pine Grove Mills, next brought out some of the good points of the Christian Endeavor pledge in an address on "The pledge and what it means to me." He said:

"The pledge in its first clause, 'Trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ for strength,' is a positive help to Christian living. It brings us into immediate consultation with God. It directs us to a daily study of the Bible, not a mere casual reading but a prayerful reading. The pledge conscientiously taken is an unfailing remedy for chronic Sunday headaches and like maladies."

Following this address was a most interesting and instructive Bible reading given by Mr. Gammel, the secretary of the Y. M. C. A. of Bellefonte. He took as his subject, "Regeneration, or the new birth." Mr. Gammel was in perfect familiarity with his subject, and along with his Bible references he followed outlines of thought that were both interesting and instructive. While he did not always agree with some of the popular ideas, his earnest words and manner won the strictest attention from every one present. He said in part:

"Regeneration is not only fitting for the new life but for the enjoyment of it. To the unprepared soul Heaven would be an intolerable torment. It not only could not enter, but also could not enjoy Heaven if it did enter."

At the evening session the church was filled to its utmost capacity with an appreciative audience, who were well repaid for being present. After the opening praise service, the reading of a Scripture passage and some special music by the quartette choir a strong address was made on "Christian Citizenship" by Rev. Chas. Frick, of Blanchard. A few of his many good things were:

"The American republic stands upon the best basis of any republic—manhood. The blending of religion and politics depends upon two things; first, upon the religion, and second, upon the politics. Five train loads of liquor are sent to the Philippine Islands for every missionery. How long will it take America to christianize the island? The primary and the ballot box should be as sacred as our Christian Endeavor prayer meeting."

Rev. W. F. Carson read as a basis for his address on "Christian Giving" a part of the twelfth chapter of John. He made a strong plea for intelligent, thoughtful giving for beneficence. He said:

"Keep the personal object, Christ, in view in giving and give from a motive of affection. Giving from the motive of love gets above the question of duty."

The substance of the address was to give as a token of our love for Christ and thankfulness for what he has given us.

At the close of the session a reception was tendered the delegates and every one departed refreshed in spirit, in mind and in the inner man.

"Both my children were taken with whooping cough," writes Mrs. O. E. Dutton, of Danville, Ill. "A small bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar cured the cough and saved me a doctor's bill." All druggists.

Flyer Beating Its Record.

The Buffalo flyer beat its record Thursday afternoon, five sections of the train going through Lock Haven. Nearly 2,000 were on the train, which crowd was augmented by about 160 people who came in on the Bald Eagle Valley road. The second section of the flyers was composed of five Pullmans on whose sides were immense streamers announcing that the special was transporting the employes of the W. C. Koller locomobile and carriage works; of Washington, Baltimore and Glen Rock, Pa., to the Pan-American exposition. In the forward Pullman car was the Glen Rock band.—Lock Haven Democrat.

For Over Fifty Years.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for over fifty years by millions of mothers for their children while teething with perfect success. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Sold by all druggists in all parts of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" and take no other kind.

CHILDISH COMFORT.

"Never Mind, Mamma, Baby Loves You."

But the childish voice is almost unheeded. The wife and mother has come to a place where love cannot comfort her, where even the voice and words of love are so blent with her own misery that they seem to increase it.

Imagine a magnificent orchestra playing in a factory amid the ring of hammers and the rattle and groaning of machinery. The discords would dominate the harmony and the harmony itself merge into discords. That is the way it is with all the music of love when a woman is wrenched and racked by pain. It seems to become part of the very discord of her life.

When the cause of this suffering is sought it will almost always be found to be womanly disease. The throbbing head, the aching back, and the dragging-down feeling are but symptoms of a disordered and diseased condition of the delicate womanly organism. When this fact is understood the one thing for the weak and sick woman to do is to look for a cure of the disease which causes her misery.

WHERE SHALL SHE TURN

for healing? If a woman were lost in a western prairie and found several paths which might lead to safety, she would take the well-trodden path in preference to the one which showed faint signs of travel. Why not the same in sickness? There is a road to womanly health which has been traveled by hundreds of thousands of women. Read what some of these women say.

"I take great pleasure in recommending Dr. Pierce's medicines to other suffering women," writes Mrs. Mary Adams, of Grassycreek, Ashe Co., N. C. "I had internal trouble very badly until it resulted in ulcers of the uterus. I was troubled with it so that I never slept a night for seven weeks. The doctors said I could not be cured, but I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Pleasant Pellets.' After taking two bottles I could sleep all night, and after taking six bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and two of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and three vials of 'Pleasant Pellets,' my case was cured. I thank God and your medicine for saving my life."

"Words cannot tell what I suffered for thirteen years with uterine trouble and dragging-down pains through my hips and back," writes Mrs. John Dickson, of Grenfell, Assiniboia Dist., N. W. Terr. I can't describe the misery it was to be on my feet long at a time. I could not eat nor sleep. Often I wished to die. Then I saw Dr. Pierce's medicines advertised and thought I would try them. Had not taken one bottle till I was feeling well. After I had taken five bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and one of 'Golden Medical Discovery' I was like a new woman. Could eat and sleep and do all my own work. I would entreat of any lady suffering from female weakness to give Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription a fair trial, for I know the benefit she will receive."

Mrs. Mattie Venghaus, of Tioga, Hancock County, Ill., writes: "I had been sick for seven years, not in bed but just dragging myself around. At last I took three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and five of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and was well. It is impossible to describe in words the good these medicines did me. No praise is too high for Dr. Pierce's medicines."

WOMAN'S CONFIDENCE JUSTIFIED.

The woman who begins the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is justified in feeling that she has taken the first step in the path to perfect womanly health. All womanly diseases medically curable yield to the healing power of this wonderful remedy. It establishes regularity, dries disagreeable and weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. The periodic headache, the distressing backache, and exhausting bearing-down pains are cured permanently with the cure of womanly diseases by "Favorite Prescription." Mothers find in this medicine the best preparative for maternity. It gives abundant strength and makes the baby's advent practically painless.

Women suffering from chronic forms of disease are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. All letters are privately read and privately answered and womanly confidences are guarded by the same strict professional privacy which is observed by Dr. Pierce and his staff in personal consultation at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y. Address all correspondence to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

In a little over thirty years, assisted by his staff of nearly a score of physicians, Dr. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., has treated and cured hundreds of thousands of sick and suffering women.

There is no similar offer of free consultation by letter or free medical advice, having behind it an institution such as the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., with its fine equipment and skilled medical staff. The free consultation by letter, offered by Dr. Pierce, puts it into every sick woman's power to have the opinion of a specialist on her condition—a specialist whose great success in the treatment and cure of womanly diseases, is in itself an encouragement to every sick woman. Of the hundreds of thousands of women treated by Dr. Pierce, ninety-eight per cent. have been permanently cured.

"Favorite Prescription" contains no alcohol and is entirely free from opium, cocaine and all other narcotics.

If you are persuaded to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription because it has cured other women, do not allow the dealer to foist on you a less meritorious medicine which he claims to be "just as good." There is no motive for such substitution except the little more profit made by the dealer on the sale of the less meritorious preparation.

A VALUABLE GIFT

for any young couple is Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, containing 1008 large pages and over 700 illustrations. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the work bound in durable cloth, or only 21 cents for the book in paper-covers. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

—Despatches from Ossining, N. Y., where the Sing Sing state prison is located, describe in detail the execution of an Italian for taking the life of a relative. It is stated the slayer displayed the greatest bravery while going to the electric chair and that even hardened keepers were effected with regret. Catarrh for Twenty Years and Cured in a Few Days.

Hon. George James, of Scranton, Pa., says: "I have been a martyr to catarrh for twenty years, constant hawking, dropping in the throat and pain in the head, very offensive breath. I tried Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder. The first application gave instant relief. After using a few bottles I was cured. 50 cents.—

CAPITAL TEN PERCENTERS.

Government Clerks Who Lend to Their Fellow Workers.

"I reckon I'll sell my salary this month," remarked the young census clerk.

"To whom?" asked his friend.

"Why, to one of the ten percenters, of course," was the reply.

Dialogues such as this are of frequent occurrence between government clerks in Washington toward the end of the month. When a clerk sells his salary to a ten percenter, he gives the latter an I O U for the entire salary due him on the following pay day and receives in exchange 90 per cent of the amount. The man who makes the loan retains the remaining 10 per cent, whence his name of ten percenter.

The ten percenter is said to exist under one name or another in all of the great federal department buildings in Washington. He is invariably a shrewd government clerk who has a bit of money of his own or has saved his salary until its accumulation represents a tidy little sum. This capital he is ever ready to lend in sums of from $10 to $100.

In a majority of the Washington offices the laws against usurers are so rigorously enforced that the ten percenter is unable to transact business in safety as an individual; he exists nevertheless under the protecting title of a beneficial society. These fake societies should not be confused with the mutual beneficiary organizations which have been established for a number of years in many of the departments, notably the government printing office, for the purpose of aiding sick or disabled members and their families and of burying the dead. The ten percenters' society never includes more than five or six members. They have their charter and a carefully drawn constitution and bylaws.

Each member contributes a certain amount of money to the funds of the concern, and the other employees of the office are quietly informed how they can be accommodated with a loan for a small bonus. On the first of every month the pool divides its profits. These organizations are usually short lived, as they become unpopular when the business begins to grow large. The death of one fake association is rapidly followed by the birth of a successor, differing from its predecessor in name only, so that the ten percenters are enabled to ply their trade without much interruption.—New York Sun.

SCRAPS OF SCIENCE.

A scientist who has made a study of the planet declares that there is snow on the moon.

There are 28 pounds of blood in the body of an average grown up person, and at each pulsation the heart moves 10 pounds.

While cyclones and tornadoes are different phenomena, the former appear to give rise to the latter. Tornadoes almost always break out, if at all, on the southeasterly outskirts of a cyclone.

A period of 5 seconds between a flash of lightning and thunder means that the flash is a mile distant from the observer. Thunder has never been heard over 15 miles from the flash, though artillery has been heard 120 miles.

Sir Robert Ball asserted that every 100 years the sun loses 5 miles of its diameter. To allay anxiety, however, he mentioned that the diameter of the sun is 860,000 miles and that 40,000 years hence the diameter would still be 856,000 miles.

When a Man Can See 200 Miles.

About 200 miles in every direction is the distance a man can see when standing, on a clear day, on the peak of the highest mountain—say, at a height of 28,668 feet, or a little over five miles above the level of the sea. An observer must be at a height of 6,667 feet above sea level to see objects at a distance of 100 miles. The distance in miles at which an object upon the surface of the earth is visible is equal to the square root of one and a half times the height of the observer in feet above the sea level.

Some allowance has to be made for the effect of atmospheric refraction, but as the refraction varies at different heights and is affected by the various states of the weather no precisely accurate figures for general purposes can be given. Probably one-fourteenth to one-tenth of the distance given by the formula would have to be deducted, owing to the refraction of the atmosphere.

Cranberry Season.

The cranberry season opened in New Jersey and Wisconsin Tuesday. These are the only states in which the crops are ready for harvesting. In the region of Cape Cod, where the majority of the berries are grown, the crop will be late owing to the damage done by the firebugs, which eat into the hearts of the berries and destroy them. The western cranberry crop is increasing each year. Heretofore, all the berries used in the western states were obtained in the east, but recently their cultivation was introduced in the western part of the country, and proved such a success that 25 per cent. of the present crop is obtained there

The cranberry crop this year is expected to be much smaller than last year's yield, which amounted to 125,000 barrels. This is attributed to the unfavorable weather conditions during the past winter and the uneven temperature, drought and the excessive rainfall of the summer. It is estimated that the crop will be about 31.250 barrels short. The prices this year will be higher.

The manner of picking the berries now is entirely different from that of a year or two back. Then men, women and children were scattered throughout the cranberry bogs picking the berries by hand. Now a novel piece of machinery has been introduced which will do the work of five or six men in a much quicker time. This machine was tested in the Cape Cod bogs and found to be successful.

Summer Perspiration Nature's Beautifier.

The summer time is the golden opportunity for the girl troubled with pimples and comedones. The torrid heat offers an efficacious substitute for the Turkish or Russian bath. The healthy streams of perspiration with which Dame Nature strives to eradicate these facial blemishes should never be damned by the opposing powder rag. Rather encourage the very friendly drop which adds its tiny share in promoting the health and purity of the complexion.

I am reminded here of a young girl, says the Ledger Monthly, who has happily been cured of some very disfiguring pimples of the chronic type which physicians had prescribed for in vain. One intolerably hot day she tried to catch a nap in the attic where the temperature equalled the hot room of the Turkish baths.

A member of the family called her to come down to cooler quarters.

"Oh, no," she replied, "this is part of the cure! I am told that I must perspire!" and she resolutely turned a deaf ear to all expostulations. When last seen that girl had a complexion without a blemish.

"Thought it Meant Death Sure."

Mrs. James McKim, of Dunnville, Ont., says of her almost miraculous cure from heart disease by Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart: "Until I began taking this remedy I despaired of my life. I had heart failure and extreme prostration. One dose gave me quick relief and one bottle cured me. The sufferings of years were dispelled like magic."—2 —In the very olden days of steamboating, when the Mississippi pilot sat on the safety-valve to hold the pressure for racing purposes, explosions of river craft boilers were not infrequent or unexpected. But, nowadays, when hundreds of devices for the protection of passengers have been invented by mechanical geniuses, and laws have been placed on the statute books against unsafe practices, such a disaster as that on the Delaware river the other day seems inexcusable if not criminal.

REPUBLICAN COUNTY TICKET.

FOR PROTHONOTARY,
EDWARD C. McKINLEY,
of Bogg's Twp.

EDITORIAL.

"Judge Love is the recognized leader of the Quay forces in Centre county."—John Hamilton to the Republican county convention, July 30, 1901.

FOR the Ripper, against the Ripper, and for the Ripper again. That's Governor Stone's Ripper record up to date. It is Mr. Quay's royal pleasure that Mr. Stone should give a continuous performance as a contortionist.

TRADE relations between the United States and Spain have resumed the conditions which existed before the Spanish—American war. In the fiscal year just ended exports from the United States to Spain were larger than in any preceding year except 1883, while imports showed a marked increase over 1899.

WERE Sir Thomas Lipton to lift the America's cup it would be a terrific blow, of course, but still the people of the United States would continue to work for a living and submit with patriotic patience should the McKinley Administration not seek a pretext for war with England.

MESSRS. Quay, Stone and Durham met in Philadelphia recently to discuss matters which, it is stated, 'will have an important bearing upon the future of the Republican party of Pennsylvania." What these matters were the Republican party of Pennsylvania has not been informed. When Messrs. Quay, Stone and Durham—intellectual giants and moral prodigies—meet to discuss matters relating to the future of the Republican party of Pennsylvania it does not occur to them to consult the Republican party of Pennsylvania, or to take it into their confidence. That would be to encourage impertinence.

TO UNITE FOR REFORM.

To overthrow maladministration and corruption in State and city, it is requisite for all citizens who favor honest government and clean methods in politics to concentrate their interests and unify their efforts. So great and far-reaching are the resources of the Quay-Ashbridge machine, so active and well disciplined are the henchmen of bossism, that to wrest victory from so formidable an organization demands earnest and sincere co-operation by all respectable voters irrespective of political affiliations. During the last session of the General Assembly the Republican machine had the assistance of numerous recreant Democrats, who are still the allies of that machine, and still, openly or covertly, in sympathy with the purposes of the Quay domination. Likewise in this city there has been a Democratic annex to the Ashbridge organization, and public opinion has forced a change of leadership in the minority party. Under the circumstances, it is the duty of all worthy citizens to unite for their own protection, just as the disreputable politicians are always found working as a unit for their own selfish and indefensible purposes.

The Legislature left a blistering record, that should serve to bring upon its masters an ignominious defeat. Its hand was raised against good government and home rule, and it sought to pervert every agency to the accomplishment of its own nefarious schemes. Breaking every promise of reform, it brought newer and more humiliating shame upon the Commonwealth. The people thus disgraced and scorned would be unfaithful to themselves, unworthy of the right of franchise, if they did not employ the ballot to strike back at their oppressors. The issue is not one of party—it is one of the people against the bosses, and any man who seeks to inject partisanship into the contest does so for the sinister purpose of securing and maintaining machine ascendency. Public opinion favors the election of Judge Yerkes, Democrat, to the Supreme Bench, and Representative Coray, Independent Republican, to the office of State Treasurer. Such a ticket is practically ideal, and with prudent and sagacious action of the Democratic and Independent leaders it should prove invincible.—Public Ledger.

POLITICS IN ABEYANCE.

The State and city convention of the Union party were to have been held in Philadelphia on September 12, but because of the attempt upon the life of the President and the uncertainties as to its results the date has been set forward a week. If the condition of President McKinley continues to improve the public mind will be relieved of fears in that time, and affairs that have sunk into secondary importance will be taken up where they were dropped when the shock of the dreadful news came.

The action of the Union party in postponing consideration of political questions at this time is commendable and must be approved by its most zealous adherents. Important to the State and the city as the deliberations of the convention may be, neither delegates nor citizens generally could take proper interest in nominating candidates for office while oppressed with anxiety for the life of President McKinley.

SOMETHING IS GOING TO DROP.

From Philadelphia Record.

This promises to be a great year in Pennsylvania for the smashing of party Machines. The people—Democrats and Republicans—are going to vote for Yerkes and Coray and let the party Machines look out for themselves. Stand from under!

THE announcement that Colombia has purchased 35,000 Mauser rifles and 5,000,000 cartridges makes it seem that the little republic contemplates war in earnest, but the story, though it has a semi-official source, is almost too large for credence. Probably by the time these equipments reach Central America they will have shrunk to much humbler proportions.

A REPROACH TO HER SEX AND THE CAUSE OF TEMPERANCE.

That Mrs. Carrie Nation had become a public nuisance was long ago recognized. That she is a creature beneath the notice of respectable people: a reproach to the organization in which she claims to be a moving spirit was demonstrated by her intemperate attack upon President McKinley at the conclusion of a lecture she delivered at Steeple-chase Park, Coney Island, on Sunday night. When about to terminate her address, she raised her voice and exclaimed: "Bill McKinley deserves to die. He is the friend of the brewer and the drinking man. I have no care for him. He deserves just what he got."

The press report of the incident stated that she hardly uttered this sentiment than she was greeted with jeers and hisses. Many of the audience arose to protest and several advanced to the platform with menacing gestures. Indignant comments were audible all over the auditorium. The thousand persons who were present were unanimous in their expressions of disgust and contempt.

There may have been a time when Mrs. Nation was sincere in her devotion and zeal to the cause of temperance but the general impression is, and has been for some time, that she is conducting her "crusade" only in the interest of personal profit and notoriety. That she has succeeded in each particular there is no question. She has achieved a reputation that some will envy and it is to be hoped that the abhorrence with which she should be regarded by people of good sense and respectability will speedily reduce her earning capacity to nothing. Her public appearance in the interest of temperance—God save the word, is an insult to the cause and to the association which seeks its advancement. The good name and honor of the W. C. T. U. demands her prompt expulsion from the association.

CZOLGOSZ IS PRONOUNCED SHOLLGOSCH.

Czolgosz, the name of the man who shot President McKinley, offers a lingual problem to nine-tenths of those who attempt to pronounce it. It is one of those names which the English alphabet cannot spell phonetically, and which the average English speaking person stumbles over in trying to express after hearing it spoken by a Russian. Written according to its sound, the name of Czolgosz, or its nearest equivalent, is "Tchollgosch," or, more broadly speaking, "Shollgosch."

"The former pronunciation is the one given yesterday by Sergeant Ter-Isaian, of the Philadelphia detective bureau, who is a Russian, and who is familiar with the varied dialects in Polish Russia, from whence the parents of Leon Czolgosz came to this country.

"Cz" is represented in the Russian alphabet by a character which is pronounced much the same as though one were suppressing a sneeze—"tch." The next two letters—"ol"—are pronounced in combination as though written "oil," and the remaining letters of the name—"gosz"—may be given the sound of "gosch."

JUST A REMINDER.

From the Phila. Record.

The proverb says it is a filthy bird that befouls its own nest. In speaking of the Machine attack on ex-Governor Hastings' financial administration The Pittsburg Dispatch pertinently remarks: "The charge is leveled at Hastings because he fell out with the Machine. But the fact is that the Legislatures which made the appropriations were under control of the Machine." So far from assenting to extravagant appropriations, ex-Governor Hastings, as The Dispatch says, used his veto upon them very vigorously. He was not aware at the time that the Governor possessed the supreme power to cut and slash appropriations at will, this being a quite recent discovery of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

ARIZONA has just cut the greatest crop of hay in her history. It is said that $10,000,000 is not too high an estimate of its market value.

GOBIN GAGS AT LAST.

"I'm about done with politics. I am disgusted with the last session of the Legislature. There was too much corruption and although I have always been a Republican I cannot stand everything that was done at Harrisburg during the last session. In all my political experience I never saw the like of it. There was open talk of corruption and vote buying in lobbies and committee rooms, and men went about openly boasting of what they had done." Thus spoke Lieutenant Governor J. P. S. Gobin in Pittsburg a few evenings since in reply to an inquiry concerning his candidacy for Congress in the Lebanon district.

General Gobin has been a faithful servitor of the machine, a Quay adherent of the most pronounced type. He has always been a Quay Republican and a glance at his public and political career will show that he never faltered in his loyalty to the Old Man and never hesitated to give the machine the best of his influence and effort. The strongest evidence that the machine Legislature of 1901 was the most vicious and corrupt in the history of the Commonwealth is that General Gobin, presiding officer of its upper branch, condemns it

When Quayites like General Gobin gag at the rottenness and profligacy of the machine and publicly denounce its course the justness of the movement to dethrone the Boss and disrupt his machine is further established and it should have the support of every honest voter in Pennsylvania, independent of political affiliations.

A LONG IMPRISONMENT AWAITS CZOLGOSZ.

It is indeed most gratifying to know that Czolgosz, the Polish Anarchist who committed the murderous assault upon the President, will not, in the event of the President's recovery which seems to be reasonably assured, get off so easily as has been supposed. The criminal code of New York State provides for only a ten years' punishment for an assault with intent to kill, and this penalty is subject to several years' commutation for good behavior.

The District Attorney of Buffalo says, however, that Czolgosz will be indicted on six separate counts, two separate assaults on the President, for which twenty years' imprisonment may be imposed; a charge of threatened assault against each of the three men who seized him after his murderous act had been committed and the charge of carrying concealed weapons. The aggregate penalties that can be prescribed on conviction may exceed thirty years and as there will not likely be any difficulty in convicting him on each of the several charges it is a satisfaction to feel that though he escapes the deserved penalty of death if the President recovers, he will in all likelihood receive the extreme sentence on each count and be consigned to solitary confinement in the penitentiary for perhaps the remainder of his days. It is a pity indeed that his life must be spared to him if the President lives, but it is to be hoped that it will be made a miserable existence to the end.

GOD IS GOOD.

The great heart of the American people throbs with gratitude and rejoicing. The news from the bed side of our stricken President is an assurance of his recovery. His attendant physicians and surgeons are unanimous in the opinion that all danger is past and that his recovery will be rapid and complete. To the throne of our Heavenly Father the prayers of gratitude and thanksgiving of our people ascend. God in His infinite goodness and mercy has vouchsafed unto us the precious life of our beloved ruler. From the shadow of a great sorrow we have come forth into the sunlight of a great happiness. God is good.

NOW THAT John Oleo Hamilton has a paper through which he can ventilate his opinions and air his vocabulary without let or hindrance the people of Centre county would like to have him devote the columns of his machine organ to an explanation of his connection with its Oleo frauds. It would make interesting reading if presented with a strict regard for truth and facts.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From Our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11, 1901.

The tragic and wholly unexpected calamity which has befallen President McKinley and the country is of course the overshadowing topic of interest in Washington today. While astute observers of public events had long recognized the possibility of such a tragedy, to the mass of the people it had the bewildering effect of a thing entirely unforseen. It had been forshadowed to some extent in the assassination of the Empress Elizabeth and of King Humbert, which proved the power and wicked daring of the anarchist societies; and it was practically certain that sooner or later this power would be felt in America, in precisely the form which it has taken. The attempted assassination of H. C. Frick by Bergman, after the Homestead riot, showed that such a deed was not by any means foreign to the thoughts of anarchists in America; and this type of assassin regards his victim as desirable in proportion to the power which he wields. That the thing was planned skillfully and carefully, and that the assassin was ordered by some secret organization to commit the crime, was proved to the satisfaction of everybody within reach of daily papers, before the news was six hours old. The fact that the assassin is not of the criminal type, that he has been calm and coherent in his testimony, and that his action was quite deliberate and well-planned, all remove this case from the class of crimes committed by half-crazy place-hunters like Guiteau, or political antagonists like Booth. It is simply the result of an organized, determined, and well-considered movement, whose object is, by the assassination of persons in power, and by causing public calamity of one sort or another, to intimidate and terrorize society with a view to abolishing all social institutions. That is in plain English the anarchist's idea of his duty; and whether he is to be allowed to entertain and obey that idea to the extent which he thinks fit, depends entirely upon public sentiment.

It is doubtful if the news could have caused, in the rest of the country, such deep-rooted pain and apprehension as it caused in the national capital. It may be said without qualification that no President has endeared himself to the people of Washington more than President McKinley. His unfaling tact, his invariable serenity, his attention to the wants and pleasures of those around him, have become known to the people of this city in a hundred different ways. Republicans all over the country may have learned during his public life, before and after his coming to the White House, to respect his ability and admire his character; in Washington, which has been his home for many years, he has won the esteem of even his political opponents by his admiral personal qualities.

There are men in power who pride themselves on their ability to say "No"; but they frequently say it in such a manner that their interlocutor feels as if he had been kicked. Mr. McKinley could always refuse a favor in a way that made the disappointed one choke down his feelings until he was out of the official presence, and even then he was not always sure that he was disappointed. No one ever had to complain of a discourtesy from Mr. McKinley, as Representative or as President. He was placed in many difficult positions, but he always got out of them without hurting anyone's feelings more than was absolutely necessary. Another lovable trait in his character is his faculty of remembering and noticing little things of importance to others. If one of his friends had a daughter married or lost a child, President McKinley never forgot to express his sympathy with the joy or sorrow, as the case might be. If he could do nothing more he would send a tactful little note. He was never on his dignity, because his dignity was himself and not a pedestal. He was accessible and approachable from the first of his term in the White House, and he always seemed to know what to say to everybody. Possibly a part of this tact and consideration may be traced to his well-known devotion to his invalid wife. Those who are members of the inner circle of Washington society know many charming little stories of this devotion, which are are not given to the public. A man cannot give himself so completely to the task of caring for a beloved and delicate woman without becoming refined and ennobled by the performance of the duty.

This is why, with an interest quite apart from sensation-seeking, great crowds of people thronged the avenues near the newspaper offices and watched the bulletin-boards eagerly until past midnight Friday night, for news of the President's condition.

A curious item appears in the news which the War Department is giving out. The Act of Congress which increased the Army to 100,000 men caused promotions all along the line; and eventually there were about 900 vacancies in the position of second lieutenant to be filled by the President. The law is that these places shall be filled by giving commissions to enlisted men who pass the examination and by the appointment of men within certain age limits who have served in the volunteer army. The famine alluded to is not due to a lack of applicants. Secretary Root had nearly 12,000 applications to sort over and weed out, and probably everyone of the applicants thought he could perform the duties of the position to perfection. The enlisted men had the first chance. About 400 took the examination, and of these nearly 200 passed and received their commissions. Then many of the former volunteer officers and men were disposed of, by being designated for appointment. It is not known how many of them have been through this experience, but the total runs into the thousands. The trouble seems to be that they cannot pass the examinations. Some of them are complaining that these are unduly severe, but the department says that men appointed in this way enter the service on a supposed equality with West Point graduates and ought to know, if not as much, at least somewhere near as much as the cadet knows at graduation. Many of them probably know more in some ways. But the point is that it is the aim of the department to place in responsible positions men who come from families which attach some importance to education, or who have had the spirit and energy to get an education for themselves; and the examination is the only practicable method of weeding out uneducated men who have nothing in common with their brother officers. In short, the education is a sort of shibboleth. The conclusion of the whole matter is that there are said to be at present over 400 vacancies, and nobody who was not in the Army during the Spanish war is eligible.

Another difficulty is bothering the Navy Department. Surgeon General Van Reypen of the Navy is trying to find four young doctors who can pass the examination for the position of assistant surgeon in the Navy Department. It has been hard work of late to find good men for the grade of assistant surgeons, and the medical corps has not been complete since the civil war. The trouble seems to be that the requirments are so great that most of the men who can pass the examination are in private practice and earning good incomes. The Navy Department also has trouble in getting sailors for cruisers and battleships.

CZOLGOSZ says that he alone planned and executed the deed. It may be that this is true, but every indication points to a deliberate and carefully organized plot. Whether he had confederates or not matters little. He represents a class that must be excluded from our country. The people demand it and Congress must act. The anarchist must go and anarchy must be stamped out of existence in America.

THE WHOLE SYSTEM

May Become Invaded by Catarrh—Manager Pfau's Case.

J. Louis Pfau, Jr., Chicago, Ill.

J. Louis Pfau, Jr., Manager Central Trust Co., writes from suite 201, Times-Herald Building, Chicago, Ill., as follows:

"Last June I had a severe attack of nasal catarrh which was very annoying and debilitated my system. Seeing your advertisements I wrote you for advice. I used Peruna constantly until last November, when the symptoms disappeared entirely."

J. Louis Pfau, Jr.

Hon. James Lewis, Surveyor General of Louisiana, says:

"I have used Peruna for a short time and can cheerfully recommend it as being all you represent and wish every man who is suffering with catarrh could know of its great value."

James Lewis.

Wherever the catarrh is, there is sure to be a waste of mucus. The mucus is as precious as blood. It is blood, in fact. It is blood plasma—blood with the corpuscles removed. To stop this waste, you must stop this catarrh. A course of treatment with Peruna never fails to do this.

Hon. W. E. Schneider, proprietor of the Baltic Hotel, of Washington, D. C., speaks of Peruna as follows: "I desire to say that I have found Peruna a most wonderful remedy. I have only used one bottle and am thoroughly satisfied as to its merits. I cannot find words to express my gratification for the results obtained."

MGR. EUGENE A. GARVEY.

Consecrated Bishop of New Diocese of Altoona.

SCRANTON, Sept. 9.—Mgr. Eugene A. Garvey, of Pittston, was yesterday consecrated bishop of the new diocese of Altoona at St. Peter's cathedral in this city with the most solemn and imposing ceremony that is performed in the Catholic church outside of the curia.

The consecrating bishop was Cardinal Martinelli, the Apostolic delegate. Assisting him were Right Rev. Michael J. Hoban, bishop of Scranton, and Right Rev. John E. Fitzmaurice, bishop of Erie. Archbishop P. J. Ryan, of Philadelphia; Bishop E. F. Prendergast, of Philadelphia, and Bishop Bernard J. McQuaide, of Rochester, were in attendance. More than one hundred priests were in the sanctuary.

Assisting in the ceremonies were the following officers.

Assistant priest, Rev. N. F. Crane, of Avoca; deacons of honor, Rev. Daniel O'Connor, of Philadelphia; Very Rev. John Boyle, of Johnstown; deacons of the mass, Rev. J. A. O'Reilly, of Scranton; Rev. Wm. Dunlea, of Tyrone; masters of ceremonies, P. J. Quinan and Rev. J. G. Fesley, of Pittston; lector, Rev. John Keeper, of Williamsport.

The sermon was preached by Rev. Charles Kelly, S. J., of Philadelphia. He preceded his discourse by referring to the fact that the joy of the occasion was overshadowed by the calamity that had come to the nation's chief and asking the earnest prayers of all that the president might be restored to health to continue to be the model of civic virtue that he has ever been.

"Ecce Sacredos," a salutatory hymn, composed especially for the occasion by Rev. H. G. Gauss, of Carlisle, was sung as an offertory. At the conclusion of the ceremonies Rev. J. N. McManus, of North Scranton, in the name of all the priests of the diocese, presented the new bishop with an embossed address and a check for $3,195. Bishop Garvey responded.

A dinner was given the new bishop by the Scranton priests in college hall in the afternoon. Six hundred of Bishop Garvey's Pittston parishoners were among the attending throng.

Bishop Garvey will sing his first pontifical mass in Pittston next Sunday and on the following Tuesday will go to his see accompanied by an escort of priests of Scranton.

—The survivors of the famous Bucktail regiment will hold their annual reunion at Gettysburg on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, October 10, 11 and 12.

Terrible Death of Two Lock Heven Men.

"We find that Harry Edward Croak and Edward McClain came to death from being struck by the engine of train No. 4 on the P. & E. railroad at about 1:10 a. m. September 9. According to the evidence of Bridge Inspector Nicholas Young they were walking west on the track about midnight and inquired where they could get on a freight train west. At 4 a. m. the track-walker. W. S. Forney, found the bodies, all cut to pieces, about 100 yards west of the signal tower on the P. & E. railroad, and we, the jury, exonerate the railroad company and its employes from all blame,"—is the verdict of John Gibson, G. J. Bird, Samuel Riddle, John Knight, John Steffen and E. L. Buzler, the jury empanneled at Nisbet by Coroner Wm. Goehrig to investigate the terrible death of two Lock Haven men.

It is the story in brief of a sad tragedy—of two men being so mangled beneath car wheels that the coroner, who has seen the horrors of the battlefield, stated that this is far worse than any death he ever saw there. Dr. Goehrig shortly after 7 o'clock Monday morning was notified of the accident and left at 11 o'clock on News Express for the scene of the awful fatality.

Arrived there he learned that it was about 3 o'clock when Track-walker Forney found McClain's body, mangled beyond recognition. About 100 yards further west was found the body of Croak. His left leg had been torn off at the hip and he was otherwise cut and bruised but not as frightfully as was McClain.

Nicholas Young, watchman at the Linden bridge, talked with the men some time before the accident occurred, and it is probable that they were warming themselves at the Nisbet cinder dump and fell asleep upon the track. It was shortly after one o'clock when the train struck them, but the fact that an accident had happened was unknown to the trainmen until the train reached Northumberland. There blood and a man's shirt was found on the engine pilot. Conductor Grubb wired the fact from Sunbury as follows:

"At Northumberland we found a man's shirt and blood on the pilot of engine. Cannot say if we ran over anyone."

One of the men was Harry Croak, aged about 22 years, son of Michael Croak, North Fairview street, that place, and the other Edward McClain, son of John McClain, of South Jones street. They were on their way home from Maryland, where they had been working.

Killed His Man in Self-Defense.

Milton, Sept. 11.—For some time Ambrose McFarland, of Watsontown, has been sleeping in the boiler house of the electric light station at this place. The fireman, N. C. Notestine, objected to McFarland's intrusions and recently ordered him away. This made McFarland angry and he threatened to kill Notestine the next time he would see him.

Monday evening McFarland entered the building and coolly pulled out a revolver and began loading it, exclaiming, "I'm going to kill you." Notestine up with his shovel and struck McFarland a hard blow across the forehead. McFarland fell to the floor with a deep gash in his head. Physicians were summoned but McFarland died a few hours later.

Notestine at once gave himself up to the authorities. The coroner's jury rendered a verdict of "justifiable homicide, Notestine having acted in self defense." McFarland's body was given to an undertaker.

Found Dead in the Creek.

Miss Sara Hettler, aged 28 years, of Farragut, Lycoming county, was found dead in Lycoming creek Friday. The woman was subject to epileptic fits, and it is supposed that while crossing the stream she was seized with one of the spells, fell, and was drowned. The funeral took place Sunday.

Father and Son Injured.

Sued for Heavy Damages.

Legal proceedings were begun at Pottsville last week by Mrs. William Burmeister to recover $10,000 damages from the borough of Ashland for the loss of her husband, Henry Burmeister, who died from smallpox in the emergency hospital in Butler township, erected by the director.

She claims the borough neglected its duty in never having organized a board of health and thereby permitted the spread of the disease, and that her husband was forcibly removed from his home and taken to the hospital in an open wagon and failed to provide proper medicine, nourishment and nursing. That they neglected and refused to employ a physician to look after and provide for him.

This is the first suit of its kind ever instituted in the Schuylkill county courts. Its disposition will solve the question of liability of boroughs and townships to organize boards of health.

The Missing Link.

In the jungles of Southeastern Asia and the islands near by, which have long been known to science as the cradle of the human race, and which are still inhabitated by the very lowest orders of human beings, the pithecanthropus lives with the elephant, tapir, rhinoceros, lion, hippopotamus, gigantic pangolin, hyena, and other animals, remains of which were found around him. It has been computed that this ancestor lived somewhere about the beginning of our last glacial epoch, some 270,000 years ago. In other words, about 17,000 generations have been born and have died between him and ourselves. It will assist our understanding of what this relationship really means to know that nearly 250 generations carry us back beyond the dawn of history, 5,000 years ago.—McClure's Magazine.

Undertaker Found Corpse Alive.

Wallace Burrows, of Dingman Run, Potter county, who was taken to Port Allegheny a few days ago for treatment, was pronounced dead by his physicians on Friday. The undertaker was summoned, and the body was being prepared for burial, when it was noticed that the limbs were warm.

Holding a mirror before the lips of the supposed corpse, it was found that Burrows was breathing faintly. He is still in a deathlike stupor, and his friends who came to attend his funeral are watching him struggling slowly back to life.

Hunting Season Coming On.

The steamboats have stopped exploding and the railroads have been quiet for a day. The fool that rocks the boat has, for him, been unusually quiet. Even the didn't-know-it-was-loaded fool has preserved a semi-respectful distance which the public cordially approves. But wait—simply wait! The hunting season is almost at hand, and then everybody will be firing bullets into men and women under the impression that they are bear, deer or even birds! 'Twas always thus, and 'twill be to the end.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.

The Grand Jury today indicted the wreckers of the Seventh National Bank of New York.

—In this world it is necessary to look at things in their best light. Life is so beautiful and so short.

Wedded at Port Matilda.

At the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Funk, at Port Matilda, at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, the nuptials of their daughter, Miss Mary Funk, and M. Lloyd Miller, of Tyrone, were celebrated, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Albert J. Weisley, the bride's pastor. Miss Elsie Barr, of Tyrone was bridesmaid, and John Funk, a brother of the bride, was best man. The bride's niece, little Miss Florence Rothrock, acted as flower girl. The bride and bridesmaid were attired in white organdy and carried pure white carnations. After the ceremony a sumptuous wedding supper was served. The home profusely abounded in beautiful flowers. About fifty guests were present.

The new benedict and his bride left Wednesday night for a honeymoon trip to Pitcairn and return within a week to Tyrone to occupy their home now awaiting their occupancy at 1200 Clay avenue.

Burglar Wanted Money.

MILTON, Sept. 5.—G. Dal. Fox, tax collector of this borough, was awakened early yesterday morning by the screams of his wife, who had been aroused from her sleep by a burglar flashing the rays of a lantern in her face. Mr. Fox reached for a revolver that was handy and fired at the intruder.

The burglar succeeded in getting out of the door, but not before Mr. Fox had shot at him twice. One of the balls went through the door. Mr. Fox followed the man to the head of the stairs and shot at him again, but did not hit him. The burglar dropped two pairs of trousers belonging to Mr. Fox in his flight. In the pockets were $18. Mr. Fox had made a large collection of taxes during the last few days, and it is supposed that the burglar was after the money.

Czolgosz Told Plans.

Buffalo, Sept. 11—Rounding up the anarchist element will follow the arrival here of Chief Wilkie, of the secret service of the United States.

It was learned yesterday that Czolgosz told a woman employed as barmaid in a concert hall, his plan to assassinate President McKinley and said if he escaped he would go to England and kill King Edward. The barmaid disappeared after the president was shot.

Buffalo, Sept., 11—Czolgosz is a total wreck and a colapse is expected momentarily. He is now sorry that he shot the president.

Card of Thanks.

A. A. Kohlbecker and family desire to return their sincere thanks to the friends and Citizens of Milesburg for the many acts of kindness shown them in their late bereavement in the death of the wife and mother Mrs. A. A. Kohlbecker.

—Mrs. James Castree, of Patton, was fatally burned at her home Thursday afternoon while trying to rescue her our years' old son from death. The child had set fire to an outhouse and the mother, believing him to be in the burning building, rushed inside, her clothing being ignited from the flames.

—The contract for the Pennsylvania railroad's new depot at Market street, Williamsport, has been awarded to J. C. Winters, who will complete the work by December 20.

—Evil thoughts swarm only in unoccupied minds. Be busy about noble things if you would be saved from the ignoble.

U. S. Leather Business.

The auditor's report of the United States Leather company, which has a number of tanneries in Lycoming county, showed that sales for the first months of 1901 were thirty per cent. larger than for the corresponding period of last year. The business of the company will be further increased soon by the output of the new tanneries which they have recently taken over. The newly acquired oak leather tanneries will furnish a supply sufficient to meet the greatly increased demand. The Wisconsin hemlock tanneries purchased last year from the Shaws are being operated to full capacity under favorable conditions. The bark lands owned by the company have appreciated in value to the extent of many millions of dollars. The leather market shows a sound and healthy business.

Consumptive Camp.

As a trial to give an idea as to whether the proposed movement to establish consumptive camps on the State's forestry reservations will be a success or not, two or three consumptives have been sent to the reservation in Pike county.

The results have been most satisfactory. The patients have been greatly benefited, and while their permanent recovery cannot be assured, the improvement in their condition is such as to strengthen the hope that camps will be carried out on a more extensive scale.

—Physicians of Adjutant-General Stewart, whose left leg was badly fractured in a runaway accident two weeks ago, deny that his condition is serious. General Stewart's wound was opened Sunday in the hospital at Harrisburg. Surgeons agreed that there was no necessity for amputation and that all the conditions were healthy. A clamp was attached to the bone, and it is expected that the general will be able to sit up in a week. Of course his contemplated trip to the Grand Army Encampment at Cleveland this week had to be abandoned.

WANTED—Good woods teamsters and wood choppers, for work at Glen Union and Farrandsville, Clinton Co., Pa., also near Bristol, Va.—Tenn. Good wages. Apply in person or by letter to J. W. Beecher Pottsville, Schuylkill Co., Pa.

SOME LOST SECRETS.

FAMOUS PROCESSES THAT WERE KNOWN TO THE ANCIENTS.

Things That Our Forefathers Were Able to Do That We Now Find Well Nigh Impossible—Cement of the Greeks and Romans.

Taking into consideration the marvelous strides we have made in almost every branch of knowledge during the last 200 or 300 years, it seems exceedingly strange that our forefathers should have been able to do things which we find impossible and that we cannot discover secrets which were almost common knowledge hundreds of years ago. But despite the fact that the average modern man knows more than did the learned men of long ago, there are mysteries of knowledge and science which our most advanced scientists cannot solve.

Thousands of years ago, for instance, the Egyptians used to embalm the bodies of their dead kings and nobility so perfectly that the bodies are in wonderful preservation today, as may be seen at the British museum. Clever as we are in this age, we cannot do the same. The valuable secret is lost and modern science cannot recover the lost knowledge. We can, of course, and we do embalm bodies, but only for temporary preservation and, comparatively speaking, in a most unsatisfactory manner. Bodies which are embalmed nowadays will not be preserved for more than a few days at most. Very many of the bodies the Egyptians embalmed before the birth of Christ are still so perfect that the lines of their faces are still as clearly marked as when they were first embalmed.

Sheffield turns out the finest, hardest and most perfect steel the world produces, but even Sheffield cannot produce a sword blade to compare with those the Saracens made and used hundreds of years ago, and the Saracens never possessed the machinery we have or had the advantage of knowing so much about metals as we are supposed to know. A huge fortune awaits the man who discovers the secret which enabled the Saracens to make sword blades so keen and hard that they could cut in two most of the swords used today.

There are a dozen different methods of making artificial diamonds, but none of the stones produced by these methods can compare with those made of old French paste, the secret of which is lost. So perfect were paste diamonds that it was difficult for even a person with expert knowledge of diamonds to tell that they were artificially produced, whereas most of the modern artificial diamonds can easily be detected, and their durability is nothing like so great as the old paste diamonds.

Probably not one out of every ten thousand buildings standing in all parts of the world, and built by modern masons, will still be standing 500 years hence. We do not know how to put stones and bricks together as the ancients did, and consequently the buildings we raise nowadays are really mere temporary structures and will be in ruins when the ancient buildings of Greece and Italy, which were built thousands of years ago, are in as good condition as they are now. The secret is not in the bricks or the stone, but in the cement and mortar, neither of which essentials can we make as the ancients made them.

In modern buildings the cement and mortar are the weakest points; in buildings which the Romans and Greeks raised thousands of years ago the cement and mortar are the strongest points and hold good while the very stones they bind together crumble away with age. We cannot, with all our science, make such cement and mortar, and therefore we cannot build such buildings as the ancients raised.

Chemistry, one might imagine, is the science which has, perhaps, made the greatest strides. Yet modern chemists cannot compound such dyes as were commonly used when the great nations of today were still unborn. Now and again it happens that searchers after antiquities come across fragments of fabrics which were dyed thousands of years ago, and they are astonished by the wonderful richness of the colors of the cloths, which, despite their age, are brighter and purer than anything we can produce.

Modern artists buy their colors ready made and spend large sums on pigments with which to color their canvases. The pictures of modern artists will be colorless when many of the works of ancient masters are as bright as they are today. Just as the secret of dyeing has been lost, so has the secret of preserving the colors of artists' paints. Yet the secret was known to every ancient artist, for they all mixed their own colors.

How to make durable ink is another great secret we have lost. Look at any letter five or ten years old and you will probably notice that the writing has faded to a brown color and is very indistinct. Go to any big museum and you will find ancient MSS., the writing of which is as black and distinct as if the MSS. were written the day before yesterday.

The secret of glass blowing and tinting is not yet entirely lost. There are still a few men who can produce glass work equal to the things of this kind which the ancients turned out hundreds of years ago. But the average glass manufacturer cannot produce anything that could at all compare with some of the commoner articles the Egyptians, and later, the founders of Venice, manufactured, and those who still hold the ancient secret guard it so closely that it will probably die with them and be added to the long list of things in which our ancestors beat us hollow.—Exchange.

CHEERED THE CENSOR.

How a Gallant Irish Regiment Took an After Battle Scolding.

The leading regiment of our column was the Fifty-third, commanded that day by Major Payn, afterward General Sir William Payn, K. C. B., a very fine regiment, who, being mostly Irishmen, were eager to meet their enemy. Meanwhile I received orders to cross the river by a ford and get round the enemy's right flank, and I had gone for this purpose and was crossing about a quarter of a mile lower down, when suddenly I heard loud cheering and a heavy musketry fire, and then I saw our troops gallantly advancing across the bridge to the assault.

It turned out to be the Fifty-third, who, tired of the delay under fire and, it was whispered, hearing that Sir Colin had sent for his pet highlanders to take the bridge, took their bits between their teeth and without any further orders determined to rush the bridge themselves, which they accordingly did, and with great success. The enemy, once forced out of their position, showed but a poor, desultory fight and, as at Cawnpur, fell an easy prey to the cavalry, who, having crossed, some by the bridge and others, including myself, by the ford, fell on them and pursued them with such success that we captured every gun they had.

The Fifty-third were well pleased with themselves and the result of the fight they had so suddenly initiated, but we heard that Sir Colin was greatly annoyed with them and after the action rated them soundly for their insubordination. But little did these wild Irishmen care. They had had their fight, and a real good one, so far as they were concerned, and as Sir Colin concluded his speech of rebuke they gave him three cheers, and giving three cheers more for General Mansfield, Sir Colin's chief of staff, who had formerly commanded their regiment, they quite upset the chief's equanimity, but at the same time cleared away his wrath.—"Old Memories."

LINCOLN'S LOGIC.

How Old Abe Learned to Tell When a Thing Is Proved.

A man who heard Abraham Lincoln speak in Norwich, Conn., some time before he was nominated for president, was greatly impressed by the closely knit logic of the speech. Meeting him next day on a train he asked him how he acquired his wonderful logical powers and such acuteness in analysis.

Lincoln replied: "It was my terrible discouragement which did that for me. When I was a young man, I went into an office to study law. I saw that a lawyer's business is largely to prove things. I said to myself, 'Lincoln, when is a thing proved?' That was a poser. What constitutes proof? Not evidence; that was not the point. There may be evidence enough, but wherein consists the proof? I groaned over the question, and finally said to myself, 'Ah, Lincoln, you can't tell.' Then I thought what use is it for me to be in a law office if I can't tell when a thing is proved?

"So I gave it up and went back home. Soon after I returned to the old log cabin I fell in with a copy of Euclid. I had not the slightest notion of what Euclid was, and I thought I would find out. I therefore began at the beginning, and before spring I had gone through the old Euclid's geometry and could demonstrate every proposition in the book. Then in the spring, when I had got through with it, I said to myself one day, 'Ah, do you know when a thing is proved?' and I answered, 'Yes, sir, I do. Then you may go back to the law shop,' and I went."—Exchange.

What to Read.

Read the good old books that have lived and held their own by the vitality of matter and style that makes them standards. Don't read a lot of new books about the Bible. Read the Bible, and then you will understand what you may afterward read about the Bible. Read Shakespeare, not controversies on Shakespeare; read Scott and Thackeray and Dickens and George Eliot. Do not be content with a short history of literature that tells you their best works and makes a few disconnected extracts and tells you their standing and what you should think of them.

Read intelligently and with interest, and every book you read will guide you to the next that is good for you personally far better than a strange mentor can do, who is often full of theories and prejudices or perhaps has got up a course of study as a "pot boiler" and has no real love of his subject.

Horses' Sunbonnets.

The wearing of sunbonnets by horses in hot weather is by no means a modern invention. In an old Italian print, dated 1542, a gentleman is shown riding on horseback with an umbrella fixed over his own head and another over that of his horse. In Mexico horses are often protected by a small parasol rising over the head, and a horse similarly accommodated has lately been seen in Regent street. Unfortunately, this headdress annoyed the conventional "horse in the street," and it came very near causing more than one disaster on the way to Langham place.—London Chronicle.

Not Needed.

According to the London Vanity Fair, a celebrated surgeon met a young officer in Piccadilly one day and greeted him with surprise. "Well, I am pleased to see you! I am surprised! Do you know I have a portion of your brain in a jar at home?"

"Ah, well," laughed the other, "I can easily spare that. I have got a berth in the war office."

A DREARY EXISTENCE

THE LONELINESS OF THE ENGLISH LIGHTHOUSE KEEPERS.

At the Bishop Station the Sentinel That Lights the Waves Lives In Almost Utter Isolation—A Service With Few Enticing Features.

During the storms that rage intermittently around the English coast in winter the landsman's mind turns in sympathy toward those who in ship or lifeboat are fighting the waves for dear life. But how often does he give one thought to the men who immure themselves in the lighthouses that stud the coast?

"I would rather spend my life in a penal settlement than be a lighthouse keeper," declared a man to the writer after a visit to the Bishop lighthouse, off the Cornish coast. "A convict does see a little of the world he lives in, but a lighthouse keeper sees nothing but a dreary expanse of water. I am not surprised that many of them should lose their mental balance."

The visitor to the Bishop lighthouse did not overcolor the picture. It was only the other day that one read of the Longships lighthouse, also off the coast of Cornwall, having been completely isolated for many weeks in consequence of fearful storms. The keepers had been reduced to smoking coffee, hops and tea leaves, though, fortunately, they had not wanted for food.

The keepers of the famous Eddystone lighthouse not infrequently find themselves in a similar predicament. In a gale the waves that buffet themselves against this wonderful monument to the engineering skill of the country are of such stupendous magnitude that they rise to a height of 200 feet and sweep right over the lantern. To those cooped up inside the sound of these waves is like that of a battery of guns at close quarters. "At such times the house shakes like a tree with a man on the top of it," was the graphic description of one who spent many years of his life there.

The new Eddystone is the roomiest and most comfortable of all our rock lighthouses. A sectional view of it shows the various compartments, commencing at the bottom with the water tank; then the entrance, the two oil receptacles, the storeroom, the crane, the living apartment, the low light, the bedroom and the service room in the order named. Formerly only two keepers were employed in the lighthouse, but a grim incident resulted in their number being increased. One of the two men died. So fierce ran the seas that the remaining keeper could not get the body of his late comrade to the shore. For a month the tempestuous weather continued, and for a month the surviving keeper lived alone with the body as his only companion. He was afraid to cast it into the waves, for he might be accused of murder.

Keepers of rock lighthouses do not last long. The incessant pounding of the waves against the building, the loneliness, the want of fresh air and exercise reduce the men to a state of nervousness that is sometimes pitiful to behold. They require a fortnight's leave every six weeks, but this liberal allowance does little to improve their physical state. A medical man whose duty it is to pay periodical visits to one of these lighthouses confesses that there is no remedy for the ills peculiar to the keepers except retirement.

The utter isolation of the silent sentinels of our coast is well illustrated by the case of the Bishop lighthouse aforementioned, which stands right out in the Atlantic. Not once in a year is it calm enough for the superintendent to land his stores at the lighthouse steps. They have to be hauled up by means of a windlass from above. A visitor bold enough to visit the place is "admitted" in a similar way. He places one fot in a noose at the end of a rope, which is thrown down to his boat, and, gripping the rope firmly above his head, he is drawn up to the "see off," as the plinth around the lighthouse is called. Thence he climbs up a perpendicular ladder to the door of the house.

Superstition adds a terror to the life of the men in this lighthouse, for the first structure was washed away bodily, and the keepers believe that the rock is haunted. A fear of a different kind keeps the men of Muckle Flugga lighthouse, the most northern point of Scotland, on the tenterhooks of a terrible suspense. On three occasions the huge black rock on which the lighthouse stands has been shaken by an earthquake.

There is something comical, though characteristic of the stiff necked Scot, in a story which comes from a neighboring lighthouse which is the charge of two families. They live on a desert island. From year end to year end they never see a visitor except the man who brings their stores. Eighteen months ago the heads of the two families quarreled, and ever since they have ceased to speak.

At the shore lighthouse of Ushinish the keeper's family has to travel 40 miles to "kirk." It is no reflection on their piety to add that they are not regular attendants.

A lighthouse keeper receives a maximum wage of £75 a year, out of which he has to supply his own rations. These consist of such unappetizing edibles as tinned beef and hard biscuits, usually washed down with weak tea and condensed milk. No intoxicating liquors are allowed.—London Mail.

The children of different countries have different tastes, but tin swords are wanted all over the world.

The Tartars owe their alphabet to the Christian missionaries known as the Nestorians.

BRICKS WITHOUT STRAW.

More than a thousand years ago—
Shadows of time, how the days go by—
There was a man I used to know—
May seem strange, but you'll see it's so
After I tell you the reason why—
Worked in a brickyard, same as you
And all of us have to do;
Mixed in the trouble and worry and strife,
The mirth and the other things of life;
Stirred in the hopes and the pains and fears,
Kneaded the mud with his sweat and his tears,
Humanest mass that ever you saw.
"Poor brick!" said the man, "but I have no straw!"

Up to his knees in the miry pit,
A pygmy's way, but a giant's grit;
His back was a chain of throbbing aches,
Lifting the mold with its earthen cakes;
Elbows rusty as hinges of steel,
Knees so lame he could hardly kneel;
Mud so stiff it would clog a plow
And couldn't be stirred with a wheel nohow;
Nights as short as the days were long;
Nothing seemed right, but everything wrong.
"Best I can do," said the man; "but, pshaw,
You can't make brick when you have no straw!"

Taskmasters pitiless lashed the man.
"Can't!" sobbed Weakness, but Courage cried,
"Can!"
"Don't!" said Despair, but Duty cried, "Do!"
"All right," said the man, "I'll worry her through!
Can't do much, and I reckon you'll see
Brick won't be just what they ought to be;
Ain't nigh so good as I know I could make
If I just had straw; but you'll have to take
The best I can do for the work's own sake."

He finished his tale of brick and then
Went home to rest, and the sons of men
Looked on his perfect work and saw
He'd have spoiled the brick had he put in straw.
—Robert J. Burdette.

GREYHOUNDS.

They Are the Fleetest of All Four Footed Animals.

Comparatively few people realize of what remarkable speed dogs are capable. Some remarkable statistics in regard to this have been gathered by M. Dusolier, a French scientist.

After pointing out the marvelous endurance shown by little fox terriers who follow their masters patiently for hours while the latter are riding on bicycles or in carriages, he says that even greater endurance is shown by certain wild animals that are akin to dogs.

Thus the wolf can run between 50 and 60 miles in one night, and an arctic fox can do quite as well, if not better.

Nansen met one of these foxes on the ice at a point more than 70 miles northwest of the Sannikow territory, which is 480 miles from the Asiatic coast. Eskimo and Siberian dogs can travel 45 miles on the ice in five hours, and there is one case on record in which a team of Eskimo dogs traveled 6½ miles in 28 minutes.

According to M. Dusolier, the speed of the shepherd dogs and those used in hunting ranges from 10 to 15 yards a second. English setters and pointers hunt at the rate of 18 to 19 miles an hour, and they can maintain this speed for at least two hours.

Foxhounds are extraordinarily swift, as is proved by the fact that a dog of this breed once beat a thoroughbred horse, covering four miles in 6½ minutes, which was at the rate of nearly 49 yards a second.

Greyhounds are the swiftest of all four footed creatures, and their speed may be regarded as equal to that of carrier pigeons. English greyhounds, which are carefully selected and which are used for coursing, are able to cover at full gallop a space between 18 and 23 yards every second.

How great an achievement this is may be judged from the fact that a thoroughbred horse rarely if ever exceeds 19 yards. Moreover, it is said that a hare at its greatest speed never goes faster than at the rate of 18 yards.

These interesting statistics are exciting much comment among sportsmen and other lovers of dogs, and the opinion is unanimous that M. Dusolier has fully proved the right of the greyhound to rank as the swiftest of the quadrupeds. Express engines only surpass them.—London Mail.

Tentative Interment.

A poor Scotchwoman lay dying, and her husband sat by her bedside. After a time the wife took her husband's hand and said:

"John, we're goin to part. I have been a gude wife to ye, haven't I?"

John thought a moment.

"Well, just middling like, Jenny, ye know," anxious not to say too much.

Again the wife spoke.

"John," she said faintly, "ye maun promise to bury me in the auld kirkyard at Str'avon beside my mither. I could na rest in peace among unco' folk in the dirt and smoke o' Glasgie."

"Weel, weel, Jenny, my woman," said John soothingly, "we'll just try ye in Glasgie first, an gin ye dinna be quiet we'll try ye in Str'avon."—Spare Moments.

He Didn't Complain.

Young Wife—This talk about men being so impatient when a woman is getting ready to go anywhere is all nonsense.

Friend—Doesn't your husband complain at all?

Young Wife—No, indeed! Why, last evening I couldn't find my gloves and had a long hunt for half a dozen other things, and yet when I was finally dressed and went down stairs to my husband there he was by the fire reading and smoking as calmly as if I wasn't half an hour late.

Friend—Well, I declare! Where were you going?

Young Wife—To prayer meeting.—New York Weekly.

As She Saw It.

Mrs. Kleener—What is the matter with you this evening, John, that you ain't smoking?

Mr. Kleener—The doctor says I mustn't. He says I must stop smoking or die.

Mrs. Kleener—Oh, I'm so glad! You won't be scenting up my curtains any more, will you?—Boston Transcript.

A Chinese philosopher says there is an ounce of wisdom at the root of every gray hair.

MISTAKES TO AVOID.

An English paper gives what it terms "thirteen mistakes of life:"

It is a great mistake to set up our own standard of right and wrong and judge people accordingly.

To measure the enjoyment of others by our own.

To expect uniformity of opinion in this world.

To look for judgment and experience in youth.

To endeavor to mold all dispositions alike.

To look for perfection in our own actions.

To worry ourselves and others with what cannot be remedied.

Not to yield in immaterial matters.

Not to alleviate all that needs alleviation as far as lies in our power.

Not to make allowances for the infirmities of others.

To consider everything impossible that we cannot perform.

To believe only what our finite minds can grasp.

To expect to be able to understand everything.

The Evolution of Warships.

A man need not be a scholar to be an inventor. One of the most successful aeronauts of old times who had made a study of aerial currents and the management of balloons once delivered an address in which he referred to "the anaconda" as "the largest bird that ever flew," and he also remarked that "the mental faculties of a man's mind is so constructed as to bring things down to a pin's point." He also referred to the currents of air as stretchums, meaning strata, and yet he was one of the foremost balloonists of his time.

He was an inventor also of many useful things and was the first man in the country to suggest an ironclad man-of-war with slanting sides. He built a miniature vessel on this plan of sheet iron, placing it in the water and fired musket balls at it at short range. Every ball glanced off. The Merrimac was built on a similar plan, and from that humble beginning the evolution or revolution in naval architecture took its start.—Baltimore Sun.

HAVE TO GIVE UP.

ITS ALL OVER WHEN NERVOUS SICK HEADACHE COMES TO YOUNG OR OLD—EVERYTHING STOPS AND NOTHING GOES ON BUT THE NERVOUS SICK HEADACHES.

If anything will engender a disregard for even life itself it is continued or oft repeated attacks of nervous sick headache. You may be able to partially describe it but the English language fails to fully do it justice. Its misery so concentrated, so condensed, so prostrating that all else is enveloped in its meshes.

Mrs. John H. Beck, of No. 115 3rd St., North, Philipsburg, Pa., says: "Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills are just fine. I used to suffer all the time with nervous sick headaches, terrible headaches that weakens one and makes one nervous and trembly. I was told of the Nerve Pills and got a box and the result was remarkable. The medicine stopped the headaches completely. A single box did this for me and I am only too glad to say so."

By calling at Krumrine's Drug Store information can be obtained regarding this great success of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills and how they were first introduced by proof of their merit.

Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills are sold at 50c a box at dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. See that portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M. D. are on every package.

BOLD TRAIN ROBBERS

Six Masked Men Held Up Cotton Belt Passenger Train.

SECURED TWO SACKS OF BOOTY

These Were Tossed on the Engine Which the Bandits Detached from the Train and Then Escaped on It.

THE JOB DONE BY RAILROADERS

FORT WORTH, Tex., September 5.—The cotton belt passenger train, south bound, due to leave Texarkana at 9.25 o'clock Tuesday night was delayed in its departure and did not get out until 11 o'clock. It reached the Texas and Pacific crossing, four miles south of Texarkana, about 11 25 p. m. As it stopped six men boarded the train. Two of these got on the engine and compelled the engineer and fireman to go back and cut the mail and express cars from the train. When this had been done, the six men boarded the engine, left the fireman with the train and the engineer was instructed to pull out south. The train was run to Eylau, a small siding, where a stop was made.

While one man guarded the engine the others went back to the express car, forced the doors and blew open the safe. When they had concluded they returned to the locomotive with two sacks heavy with booty. These they tossed on the engine. Turning to the engineer one of them said: "We will just shell road you here; you are not the only engineer in this crowd, and I guess we can run the machine a few miles without your assistance. When you locate your wagon figure the run in on your mileage, as we won't put in time for the run we make."

Putting out the headlight, the bandit engineer opened the throttle and pulled out. Engineer Henderson was left with the express and mail cars and the messenger and postal clerk. He made his way to a section house near the scene and procuring a hand car and some assistance in propelling it started on a search for the locomotive.

At a point south of Rowan, within four miles of Rodwater, they came upon the deserted engine on the main track, throttle closed, lights out, and no one in sight. The engine was at the bottom of a grade and either had been deserted or been left at a point further north and was allowed by its own weight to seek the level track, Engineer Henderson took possession, backed to the express and mail cars and coupled up.

The train was not put together until early Wednesday morning. Some time after midnight Henderson succeeded in getting his engine and the two cars back to where the first stop was made by the robbers and the train proceeded south to Mount Pleasant, the division point. There a full report was made and the officials of the company ordered everthing done possible to find the robbers. In the meantime Conductor Armstrong and several passengers had walked back to Texarkana and given the alarm. Without delay the sheriff organized a posse and started in pursuit and the conductor returned to his train.

The passengers were not molested. While Superintendent Russ, of the Pacific Express company, admits that the robbers secured much money, he refused to make a statement. The work was done by men more experienced in railroading than in robbery. They knew the stops of the train and were prepared for the emergency thus presented. It was not necessary for them to flag the engineer, and when he stopped for the crossing they climbed abroad. They were armed, but did not make unnecessary display of their weapons. All were masked, and each wore a coat. The country where the holdup occurred is densely wooded, so that the robbers have had an opportunity to double on their tracks through the timber and hide their route.

Building

Requires a foundation. That is just as true of the building up of the body as of the building of a house. The foundation of a strong body is a strong stomach. No man can be stronger than his stomach. A weak stomach means a weak man.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enables the perfect digestion and assimilation of the food which is eaten. Thus it builds up the body and restores strength in the only way known to Nature or to science—by digested and assimilated food.

"While living in Charlotte, N. C., your medicine cured me of asthma and nasal catarrh of ten years' standing," writes J. L. Lumsden, Esq., of 221 Whitehall Street, Atlanta, Ga. "At that time life was a burden to me, and after spending hundreds of dollars under numerous doctors I was dying by inches. I weighed only 131 pounds. In twenty days after I commenced your treatment I was well of both troubles, and in six months I weighed 170 pounds, and was in perfect health. I have never felt the slightest symptom of either since. Am sixty-five years old and in perfect health, and weigh 160 pounds. No money could repay you for what you did for me. I would not return to the condition I was in, in October, 1872, for Rockefeller's wealth."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets assist the action of the "Discovery," when a laxative is required.

To Marry After Nine Years' Wait.

From the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Perhaps there is not a more impatient man in West Philadelphia than John W. Codd, of 5713 Arch street. He is anxiously awaiting the 10th of September, when he will sail for Liverpool and marry his fiance, who has patiently waited for nine years until he should have acquired money enough to settle comfortably. As he was a missionary for seven years, he has only been bent on worldly gain for two, and he now thinks he can afford to offer Miss Mary H. Knott as nice a home as any fair English maid could desire. From 1892 until 1897 the pair did not see or correspond, yet they never once faltered in their devotions to each other.

To Consolidate Two Colleges.

York, September 6.—There is a project on foot among the leaders of the Evangelical church to consolidate their two colleges. The one is the Central Pennsylvania college; located at New Berlin, Pa., It is under the jurisdiction of the Central Pennsylvania confereuce and the Pittsburg conference and has an endowment of $100,000. The other is Albright college, located at Myerstown, Pa,, and is under the domain of the East Pennsylvania conference. It has a like endowment. It is proposed to untie these two institutions and erect buildings at a cost of $150,000. Harrisburg, Reading and York are looked upon for the location.

To Visit a Sick Brother.

Frank P. Harter and Albert Harter, of Renovo, started Tuesday afternoon for Colorado, where their brother is seriously ill of consumption. The News says their brother, whose home is in Bellefonte, and his wife went to California some time ago hoping the mild climate of that state would aid them to recover from the illness with which they were afflicted. The wife, however, died, and Mr. Harter with his child started on the journey homeward. He expected to be in Chicago by this time, but when he arrived in Rye, Colorado, he became so ill that he was unable to travel further.

ROOSEVELT TO VETERANS!

The Vice President Delivers an Able Address.

AT BURLINGTON CITY, VERMONT

Pays a Glowing Tribute to the Heroes of the Rebellion—He Received a Great Ovation.

A SUMMARY OF HIS SPEECH

BURLINGTON, Vt., Sept. 6.—Vice President Theodore Roosevelt arrived here last evening from Rutland, where earlier in the day he had been the principal attraction at the Vermont State fair. The Vice President on his arrival at West Rutland from the west was met by United States Senator Proctor, Mayor J. Burton Hollister, of Rutland, and Henry O. Carpenter, president of the Fair association. He was taken to the quarries of the Vermont Marble company by the Senator and shown the methods of getting out marble from the deepest quarries in the world and the processes of finishing the stone.

He spent nearly two hours at the quarries and was then driven to the fair grounds, where he received a tremendous ovation. The Proctor cornet band and Co. A, of the Vermont national guard, met the Vice President at the gate and escorted him to the speaker's stand. It was about five minutes before the cheering stopped sufficiently so that Senator Proctor could introduce him. Col. Roosevelt spoke 20 minutes, being interrupted frequently by applause. When he finished there were calls for Proctor, and the latter said, among other things:

"Bring some one else to speak to you. It has been my pleasure to bring to your city two presidents and today I bring the vice president, for whom we all think that higher honors may be in store."

In this city the vice president attended the reunion of the Grand Army of the Republic and the veterans greeted him with marked enthusiasm.

Vice President Roosevelt, after paying a high tribute to Vermont's part in the preservation of the Union by contributing her full quota to the army in the dark days of the 60s, besides sending out thousands of her sons to swell the ranks of those from other states, said:

"Other men have rendered great service to the country, but the service you rendered was not merely great, it was incalculable. Other men by their lives or their deaths have kept unstained our honor, have wrought marvels for our interest, have led us forward to triumph or warded off disaster from us; other men have marshaled our ranks upward across the stony slopes of greatness.

"But you did more; for you saved us from annihilation. We can feel proud of what others did only because of what you did. It was given to you when the mighty days came to do the mighty deeds the days called for, and if your deeds had been left undone all that had gone before would have turned into apples of Sodom under our teeth. The glory of Washington and the majesty of Marshall would have crumbled into meaningless dust if you and your comrades had not buttressed their work with your strength of steel, your courage of fire.

"Moreover, all these qualities of heroism and stubborn endurance were displayed in a spirit of devotion to a lofty ideal and not for material gain. The average man who fought in our armies during the Civil war could have gained much more money if he had stayed in civil life. When the end came his sole reward was to feel that the Union had been saved and the flag which had been rent asunder was once more made whole. Nothing was more noteworthy than the marvelous way in which, once the war was ended, the great armies which had fought it to a triumphant conclusion disbanded and were instantly lost in the current of our civil life. The soldier turned at once to the task of earning his own livelihood. But he carried with him memories of inestimable benefit to himself, and he bequeathed to us that come after him the priceless heritage of his example.

"You have left us the right of brotherhood with the gallant men who wore the gray in the ranks against which you were pitted. At the opening of this new century, all of us, the children of a reunited country, have a right to glory in the countless deeds of valor done alike by the men of the North and the men of the South. We can retain an ever-growing sense of the all-importance, not merely to our people, but to mankind, of the Union victory, while giving the freest and heartiest recognition to the sincerity and self-devotion of those Americans, our fellow countrymen, who then fought against the stars in their courses. Now there is none left, North or South, who does not take joy and pride in the Union, and when three years ago we once more had to face a foreign enemy, the heart of every true American thrilled with pride to see veterans who had fought in the Confederate uniform once more appear under Uncle Sam's colors, side by side with their former foes, and leading to victory under the famous old flag the sons of both those who had worn the blue and of those who had worn the gray.

"When you of the Civil war sprang forward at Abraham Lincoln's call to put all that life holds dear, and life itself, in the scale with the nation's honor, you were able to do what you did because you had it in you, not only the qualities that make good citizens, but in addition the high and intense traits, the deep passion and enthusiasm which go to make up those heroes who are fit to deal with iron times. We can never as a nation afford to forget that back of our reason, our understanding and our common sense there must lie in full strength the great fundamental passions which are not often needed, but which every great race must have as a wellspring of motive in time of need."

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

Serious Accident At Beech Creek

Augustus Smith, son of Charles Smith, who lives along the mountain two miles from Beech Creek, met with a serious accident Thursday forenoon. He was riding to Beech Creek on a clay car of the Pennsylvania fire brick company and when near the station the train was stopped suddenly. Young Smith's foot was caught between two cars and crushed from the toe to the instep. Dr. McGhee, of Mill Hall, happened to be in the borough and he gave the boy surgical attention. It is feared that the foot will have to be amputated. The boy is about 13 years old.

The Bravery of Woman.

Was grandly shown by Mrs. John Dowling of Butler, Pa., in a three years, struggle with a malignant stomach trouble that caused distressing attacks of nausea and indigestion. All remedies failed to relieve her until she tried Electric Bitters. After taking it two months, she wrote: "I am now wholly cured and can eat anything. It is truly a grand tonic for the whole system as I gained in weight and feel much stronger since using it. It aids digestion, cures dyspepsia, improves appetite, gives new life. Only 50c Guaranteed, at F. Potts Greens Drug Store.

—There has long been a loud complaint to the effect that all the professions and callings were uncomfortably overcrowded. The Philippine Islands seem to be furnishing a partial answer to the problem of disposing of the alleged surplus. There is hope for the pedagogues. Already, twenty-three Harvard men have accepted positions as instructors in the archipelago. It is to be hoped that these young men and their colleagues from other universities and colleges will soon teach the youthful Filipino "how to shoot" in the proper way and avoid casualties. Education is the greatest civilizer and something of a pacifier as well.

—Brack Powell, colored, who has been run out of town by the authorities on numerous occasions, will not be back for some time. He accompanied the Bellefonte track horses, as an attendant, and while at Hornersville he got in trouble for assault and was put in the coop for a term of six months.

Shooting Contest at Clarence.

The shooting contest Wednesday at Clarence, Pa., between Bellefonte, Snow Shoe and Clarence teams resulted as follows, the scores being the highest out of twenty-five shots:

Bellefonte team, T. R. Harter, 14; Charles Kurtz, 4; John P. Harris jr., 15, Charles Heisler, 10; John Trafford, 11; Bruce Garman, 13; total, 68.

Snow Shoe team: James Leisenring, 18; Grant Hesling, 15; Charles Watson, 17; Lem. Lucas, 16; Harry Gunsallis, 13; Rem. Grove, 19; total, 98.

Clarence team: George Uzzle, 16; W. R. Haynes, 18; Charles Watson, 20, David Chambers, 19; James Uzzle, 15 William Chrisman, 15; total 103. The same teams will shoot again next Wednesday afternoon at Bellefonte.

Grace Lawrence Free.

After being out nearly seven hours the jury in the retrial of Grace Lawrence, on the charge of conspiring to defraud D. H. Huffman, returned a verdict of not guilty and placed the costs on the county in court at Williamsport Wednesday. At the first trial she was found guilty of blackmail and conspiracy, The admitted unconstitutionality of the blackmail law confined this trial to conspiracy, and it was left for the jury to decide whether the defendant's sworn confession, implicating others, on which the prosecution depended, was obtained by duress.

Alighted On Picket Fence.

Jersey Shore, Sep. 6.—Henry Emery, a farmer 65 years old, near Safe Harbor, was picking plums Wednesday afternoon from the top of an eight foot ladder. The limb of the tree against which the ladder leaned, broke, and Mr. Emery fell alighted on a picket fence. The points of the pickets did not penetrate the body but the indentations made caused internal injuries. His condition is critical.

RHEUMATIC WARPED LIMBS.

To suffer the most excruciating pains, to lose the use of limbs, and to have the joints swollen and disfigured is the lot of the victim of rheumatism.

Uric acid in the blood is the cause of rheumatism. If the kidneys are active, they remove the uric acid. That is their special work. If, on the other hand, the kidneys are deranged, there is sure to be uric acid in the blood and rheumatic pain through the body.

No amount of liniment will ever cure rheumatism. It sometimes relieves, but cure can only be brought about by setting the kidneys right. The most effective kidney remedy known to man is Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They cure rheumatism permanently by making the kidneys active in their work of removing the uric acid from the blood.

Mr. William J. Coad, No. 66 Brunson Street, Oswego, N. Y., writes: "I am very glad to praise Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and tell what they have done for me. I suffered for many years with severe constipation, Rheumatism and kidney trouble, and could get no relief until I tried Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. In them I found immediate relief, and can honestly recommend them to other sufferers."

—A. Miles Arney of Centre Hall has resigned his position with the General Electrical Co., at Schenectady, in N. Y., to accept that of assistant in the Electrical Laboratory at Penn'a State College, and will fill the position with the opening of the fall term, begining today, Mr. Arney graduated at State with the highest honors.

—Some one, said to be a scientist, has discovered that mice have a great antipathy for peppermint oil, and that a judicious distribution of it will be sure to keep them away. Considering the many objections there are to use of poisonous articles for this purpose, it may be worth while for those troubled with the little rodent to put the scientist's discovery to the test.

A SUDDEN DEATH.

Mrs. A. Kohlbecker Died Sunday Evening in Zeller's Drug Store.

This community received a severe shock in the sudden death of Mrs. Alois Kohlbecker, of Milesburg, which sad event occurred in Zeller's drug store Sunday evening about half past seven o'clock. Mrs. Kohlbecker had been in her usual good health all day Sunday and in the evening in company with her husband she drove to Bellefonte to attend services in the Catholic church. She was in unusual good spirits until they reached Allegheny street when she complained of a severe pain in the region of her heart. When they reached the Crider's Exchange they got out and tied their horse, and at Mrs. Kohlbecker's suggestion went into Zeller's drug store to see if they could not secure something to relieve her suffering. She grew rapidly worse and Drs. Harris and Hibler were summoned, but when they reached her she was beyond aid. She passed away in about half an hour after entering the store. Her remains were taken to her home in Milesburg. The doctors state that the cause of her death was fatty degeneration of the heart.

Mrs. Kohlbecker, whose maiden name was Anna Mary Siegworth, was born in Pittsburg, July 25th, 1852, and was 49 years of age. She was married to Alois Kohlbecker, of Milesburg, in 1870. Sixteen children were the result of this union, ten of whom are living as follows: Louis, Monongahala City; Mrs. Felix Vallamont, of Kane; Frank, Henry, Emma, Estella, Josephine, Francis, Lena and Ollie, of Milesburg.

She is also survived by her husband, Alois Kohlbecker, her mother, Mrs. Anna Siegworth, both of Milesburg, and the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. Josephine Gingerich, Cleveland; Mrs. Charles Walters, Ravanda; Louis and George, of Blair county; Frank, of Monongahala and Julian of Jeanette.

She was a consistent member of St. John's Catholic church of this place and enjoyed the love and respect of a large circle of friends and acquaintances.

The funeral took place Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock from the Catholic church. Interment in the Catholic cemetery.

Death of a Former Centre County Man.

News has been received here of the accidental death of M. Bing Stover, a former resident of Centre county, which sad event occurred Monday in the wreck of a Grand Army excursion train near Wheeling, West Virginia. Mr. Stover was the engineer of the ill fated train and the only one to lose his life. He was a resident of McMeekin, West Virginia.

Deceased was born at Unionville, Centre county, 50 years ago, and was the son of William and Sophia Stover. Surviving him are his wife and two step sons, his mother, four sisters and two brothers. The brothers and sisters are Oscar, of Potters Mills; Curt, of St. Paul, Minn.; Mrs. M. Frink, of Tyrone; Mrs. Scott Bricker, of Boalsburg, Mrs. Fall Stover, of Bellefonte, and Susie, of Unionville.

The funeral took place Wednesday afternoon. Interment at McMeekin.

The Veterans' Picnic.

The annual picnic of the Centre County Veterans' Association, which was held Saturday in Archey's woods at Pine Grove Mills, proved a very successful affair. The weather was all that could be desired and the attendance was quite large. The people of that vicinity are noted for their hospitality and everyone was made to feel perfectly at home.

Addresses were delivered by Hon. Geo. W. Atherton, Senator W. C. Heinle, Gen. James A. Beaver, D. F. Fortney and others. After the speaking the veterans had their pictures taken in a group.

The Association realized $310.00 from the day's proceedings.

A game of base ball was played during the afternoon between Pine Grove Mills and State College, which resulted in a victory for the former team by a score of 12 to 9.

Married Too Often.

Word has reached Bellefonte that a young man giving his name as Milton Dinges is in jail at Aurora, Ill., charged with bigamy and wife desertion. He is a native of Centre county and was married to Miss Agnes Royer, of Millheim, several years ago. Shortly afterwards he went west and located at Aurora, where he married a Miss Dane, of Batavia. They lived happily until a short time ago, when Dinges suddenly disappeared, and Mrs. Dane-Dinges learned that he had another wife living at Millheim, Pa., when she sent the police after him and he was captured in Chicago.

Miss Agnes Royer, his first wife, is living with her parents in Millheim and has made an application for divorce, a commissioner to take testimony having been already appointed in the matter.

THE GOLDEN ROD DANCE.

Brilliant Social Function Held in the Armory Friday Night.

The Golden Rod dance held in the armory Friday night concluded the summer series of dances given by the society people of Bellefonte. As a social function it proved one of the most delightful and successful ever held in Bellefonte.

The interior of the armory was very tastefully decorated for the occasion with the National flowers, Golden Rod. The music was furnished by the famous Chappel orchestra of Williamsport in their usual good style. The home attendance was quite large and the large number of out-of-town guests bore testimony to the popularity of Bellefonte dances.

The patronesses were Mrs. D. H. Hastings, Mrs. W. Fred Reynolds, Mrs Howard J. Lingle, Mrs. Wilbur F. Reeder, Mrs. George F. Harris, Mrs. Frank Warfield, Mrs. H. C. Quigley, Mrs. H. S. Cooper, Mrs. L. T. Munson, Mrs. A. O. Furst and Mrs. John M. Dale.

Among the guests from a distance were: John M. Gates, Chas. A. Cass, Thomas K. Morris and wife, Miss Cass and Miss Barnes, Tyrone; Harry Anderson, Chicago; H. L. Evans, Baltimore; Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Morris, Pittsburg; Miss Pettit, Altoona; Miss Edwards, Pittsburg; James Mathers, Cleveland, Miss Fredericks, Flemington; Mrs. H. S. Cooper, Ithaca, N. Y.

THE CENTRE COUNTY FAIR.

Second Annual Exhibition Now in Progress.

The second annual fair of the Centre County Agricultural Exhibiting Company opened Tuesday on the fair grounds at this place and the prospects for success are very bright, weather permitting.

The exhibits this year are much larger and more varied than last year and the management is being congratulated on this fact.

The mid-way is up-to-date and consists of everything to be found at a first-class fair. The man who eats them alive is there, the bearded woman, the snake charmer and the patent medicine man afford amusement for the crowd.

The racing started Wednesday afternoon. Thirty-five horses are entered for the races during the week, the greater number of them coming from Pennsylvania, New York and Maryland.

State Secures a Prize

"Pop" Golden has secured a prize for his State College foot ball team. It is Sweet, who played centre on Bucknell last year and who will be found in his former position in the State College team this year.

Sweet is one of the best centre men who has ever played on the Williamsport gridiron, says the "Gazette and Bulletin," and was one of the mainstays of the Bucknell team. It was not until Sweet had been injured and left the game that State could make any headway in last year's State-Bucknell game. Golden will have almost an entire new team this year but has promising material.

It is possible that Scholl may return to State and take a post graduate course. If he does he will be in the harness again in the big games and will assist in developing the new men. He and Sweet would make a good pair for Golden to draw to in filling up his team.

State plays Lehigh at Williamsport November 16. It opens the season September 21 with Susquehanna. Burlingame plays at State October 12.
